The BANYAN of NINETEEN THIRTY

THE rythmical procession of days gliding by takes the Present into the Past where it is oft forgotten. But some great events refuse to become lost in obscurity, and they reach down the Ages into the ever-living Present.

A century ago—a mighty sweep to the mind of man—a small gathering effected the organization of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. From this infinitesimal conclave of six men has grown one of the most far-reaching influences of modern times.

MET with the fiercest opposition, the adherents of this new faith found great difficulty in establishing permanent communities. Many times they were forced by ungoverned mobs to leave their burning cities. Each time the Saints sought a new place to build, undismayed and with faith unshaken.

WESTWARD, ho with the rumble, the shouting, and the clamor of a large company on the march, covered wagons in hundreds pulled into the long, wavering lines that lengthened across the prairies. Toward the sunset, into the great American wilderness, trekked the thousands of Mormons, expatriated, seeking only a place where they could enjoy freedom of worship and peace. But some of those from foreign lands, unable to obtain wagons and ox teams, loaded handcarts and made the journey afoot.

Above the storied romance of "Crossing the Plains" stands, unforgettable, the courage and sincerity of those who builded our heritage.

DEDICATION

MISTILY veiled in shadow though it may have sometimes been, an Epoch of the Past comes into its own today. For us, the life of those century-old events centers in the figure of one great man, and the weight of his memory is upon us. To our minds his name comes irresistibly in this dedication, and the importance of the role he played that occurred a hundred years ago cannot be denied.

His followers loved him. He gave an inspiration of courage to his people that carried them through many a dark hour of despair and trial. His mortal existence closed before the Mormon empire was built in the Rockies, but he knew the destiny of the Saints and foretold their great exodus to this place. He lived, and gave, and died for the faith and knowledge he had, and we remember today the wealth of his bequest to us.

To the Prophet Joseph Smith we reverently inscribe this dedication.

FOREWORD

IN these opening pages we have sought to give a fleeting glance at the march of events in the history of the great Church now celebrating its hundredth anniversary. Humble as our effort is, we believe that it is justified by the fact that we are students in the University founded by one of our leaders.

This school of ours, with its ideals of educational and cultural achievement, its deeply embedded traditions of moral and spiritual attainment and conduct, owes its very existence to the organization composed of sturdy and unflinching men and women—Pioneers in a country menaced by the resentful Redskin and scourged by crop-devouring locust. The Indian has finally become reconciled to his white-skinned brother, and the hated, once-feared insect has been subdued by the beloved Seagull.

CONTENTS

By its content do we measure the length of time. And of a certainty the Century just passed is filled to a fulness no other like has ever known. Science, education, industry, have enjoyed a period of advancement never before dreamed of. By its growth and influence in the lives of thousands, Mormonism has proved its right to exist. It, too, has progressed.

At the celebration of the Centenary the whole world listens in—and marvels at the results of Mormondom's first hundred years.

President's Entrance

Buildings frequently partake of the personality of the men associated with them. It is not difficult to see in this picture the figure of that beloved head of B. Y. U. entering his office to take up the daily task of directing school affairs, or leaving after an arduous day spent with the problems of students here. Again tradition has mellowed even the very walls, and their kindly firmness seems to come from the admirable men whose work is accomplished within them.

Library

College days are not all play, and serious study must be a vital part of the life of him who would take benefit from the campus into the wider activities he will later enter. Words of wisdom, inscribed by great men and women are here kept. The student consults them, and out of this experience he grows richer and bigger in his own. The Heber J. Grant Library building—storehouse and dispensary of knowledge.

President's Home

To live on the brow of a hill overlooking Young's great stadium in a home resting in the shadow of grand old Timpanogos and her stately companions; to be able from the windows of his own study to take in with one sweeping glance the beauties of wonderful Utah Valley—that is the privilege of the man who dwells here in the President's home.

Education Building

Few buildings are given to become so rich in tradition, so mellowed by golden memory as is the Education Building. Here have struggled and learned, joyed and sorrowed, wept and laughed, the thousands who have partaken of B. Y. U.'s spirit in days gone by. From here have gone out into the world myriads of men and women better equipped for Life and its contest than they could have been otherwise.

Campus and Mountains

Immutable, seemingly, in aloofness of mighty strength and beauty the solemn old mountains look down, and if one tries to hear they seem to speak: "Be patient, O impetuous Youth. Fret not in too great haste to do and take. Days of the present are not forever real. Memories must be golden, store up the treasures of school-days." And in the knowing silence which follows the Patriarchs again commune with God.

Maeser Memorial

Memorial pillars, white, gleaming in the bright sunshine—to honor him whose personality still lives on the campus. On drowsy spring afternoons, who doesn't like to pilfer a few minutes from his studies to sit under the friendly branches of leafy trees to spend dreamy ages in effortless reveries? From these brief moments inspiration comes—but some facetious persons sans understanding, oft make ribald reference to "spring fever."

Faculty

A HEAVY responsibility is that devolving upon the head of the Church school system, but that responsibility is amply cared for by the present Superintendent Joseph E. Merrill.

Of course, one of the most important tasks of this man is with regard to the University. During his administration, Superintendent Merrill has proved his friendship and interest for B. Y. U., and the students have a great deal to thank him for.

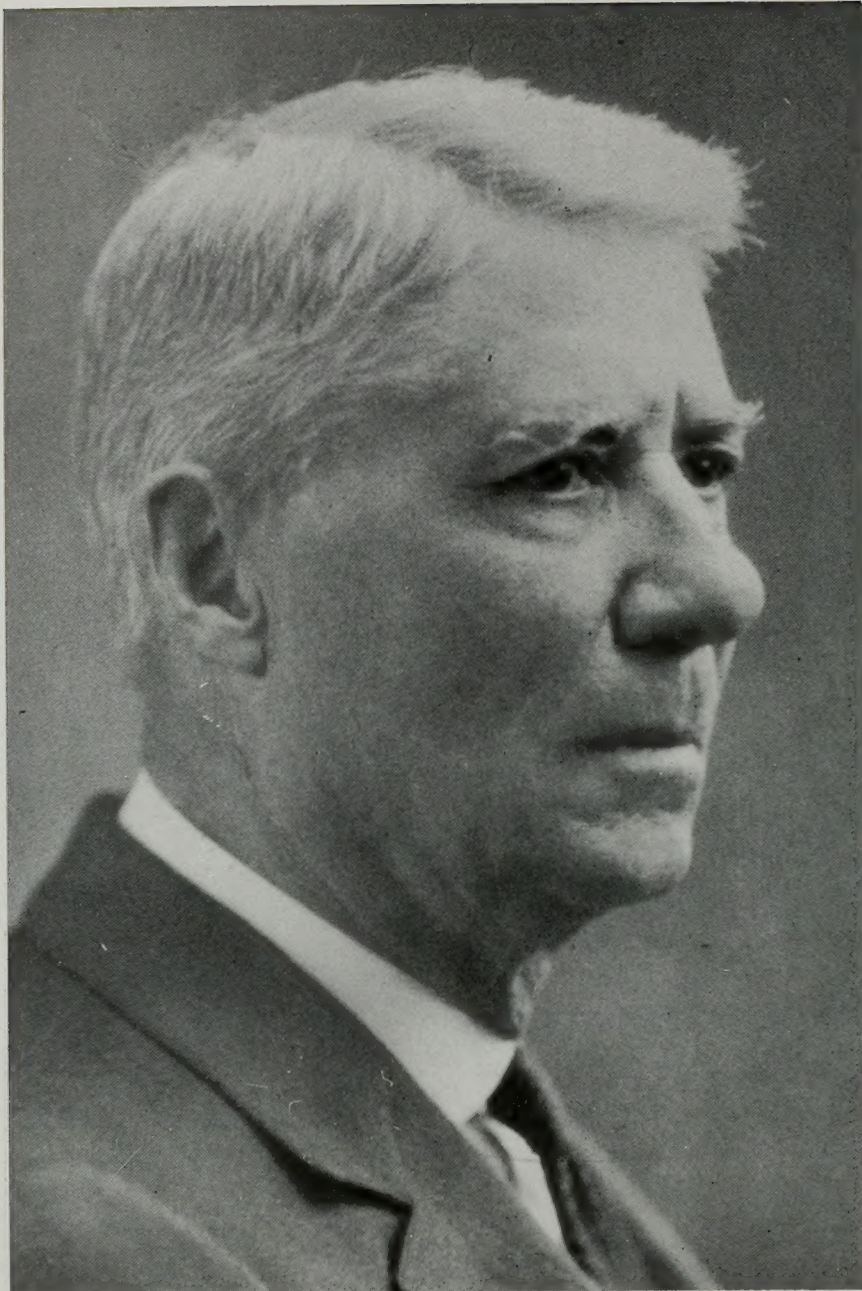

THERE is something about Brigham Young University that causes its spirit to be imprinted on the hearts and in the lives of all who have received instruction within its sacred walls.

This Banyan will help to keep alive the memories of college days; it should stimulate all who look through its pages to carry on the spirit of the "Y". I am sure that all who have a copy will prize it to the end of their days.

—FRANKLIN S. HARRIS.

I AM in every way, and especially from an educational point of view, grateful to be remembered in a book dedicated to Joseph Smith. The prophet who proclaimed that learning and liberty would extend on parallel levels into the eternities; the Seer who saw that the Glory of God is in intelligence; the Revelator who announced in the name of Deity, the opening of all the avenues to truth—"Both in heaven and on the earth, and under the earth, things which have been; things which are; things which must shortly come to pass; things which are at home, things which are abroad."

I am made happy with the consciousness of working in an institution that puts no fences around any of the fields of truth.

—GEORGE H. BRIMHALL.

School of Arts and Science

Dean Christen Jensen has filled the responsibility of the deanships of two colleges, one of them being the largest in the University. Acting as Dean of the College of Arts and Science in the absence of Dr. Eyring, he has directed the activities with the purpose of providing a broad education for students and equipping them for organized study and investigation.

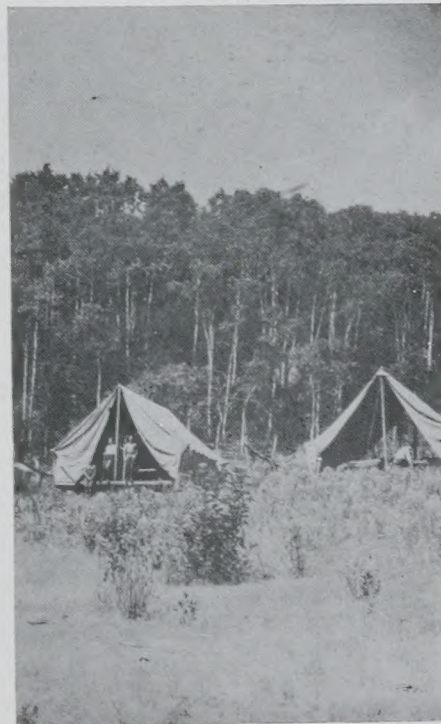

DEAN CHRISTEN JENSEN

Because of his higher study and extensive travel, Dr. Jensen was readily seen to be admirably adapted and qualified for the position of dean of the newly organized Graduate School. His is the distinction of being the first Dean of this school.

Summer School

Summer school is the time when work and recreation hit a pleasing and profitable balance. Each year a larger number of regular students avail themselves of the opportunity to get this full quarter's work. When the student figures what each day in college is worth in money, he finds it is far more profitable to spend his summer at school than to attempt to recruit his finances in other jobs.

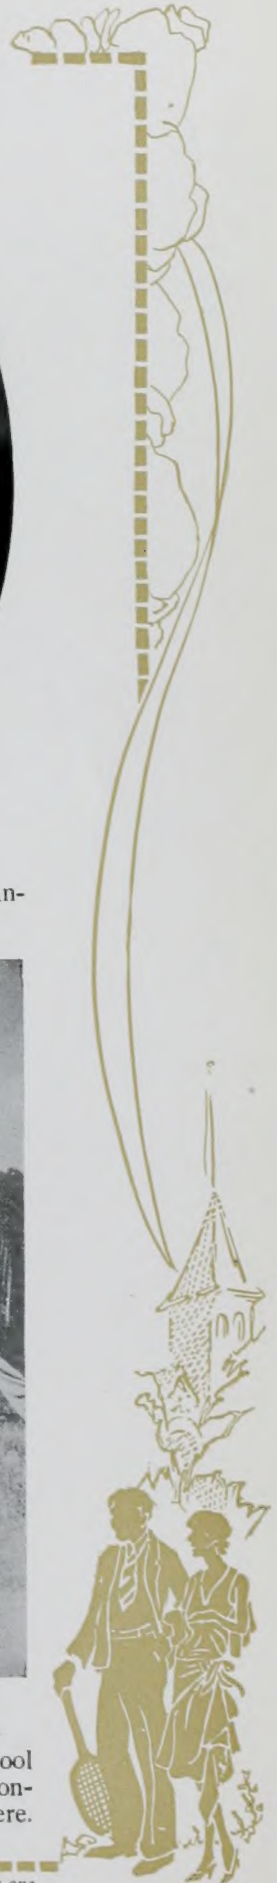

ALPINE SUMMER SCHOOL

DEAN HUGH M. WOODWARD

By going to summer school the student cuts his four-year course to three, thereby saving one year of precious time. Summer school at Brigham Young University, with its augmented faculty, fine lecture courses, and the wonderful term at Alpine, makes study a pleasure. The social life takes on a changed atmosphere.

College of Education

DEAN L. JOHN NUTTALL

The College of Education is attempting to meet the needs of the schools of the state as much as possible by supplying efficient elementary and secondary teachers.

To satisfy the demand for excellence in the teaching profession, Dean Nuttall and his capable associates have attempted to give to the prospective teachers opportunities for gaining a practical philosophy and theory of education as well as an enlarged knowledge of subject matter. In the elementary and secondary training schools the student teachers are given opportunity for rich actual experience under expert critical supervision.

TRAINING BUILDING

College of Commerce and Business Administration

After our graduates have participated in the scholarly and cultural values for which Brigham Young University is well known, one is entitled to expect that their records will be a reflection of their university training. The College of Commerce has been organized long enough to have only a sprinkling of graduates out in the practical world. On the basis of the short record at hand it is quite observable that the future will find many of our business school graduates in the ranks of the captains of industry.

COLLEGE BUILDING

College of Fine Arts

Since its origin in 1925, the School of Fine Arts has constantly grown in popularity and enrollment. The students who enter this school do so, usually, with cultural rather than pecuniary motives for College offers to talented students a professional training in the fields of art and music which is invaluable.

Dean de Jong, whose pleasant personality and keen sense of humor have made him popular with everyone, has capably served the College as dean since its establishment. His native ability, accomplishments and training have been important factors in the rapid growth of the school.

Dean of Women

If you do not know Dean Smart, go into her office and get acquainted. She believes that "life is an adventure of understanding" and that a Dean of Women must pray, like Solomon, for an understanding heart.

Mrs. Smart says, "What we all need is happiness; but this does not just come. It has to be made, bit by bit. We must believe that 'all the world's a stage,' and that happiness comes from beautifying, idealizing, and developing to their utmost the difficult, plain or uninteresting conditions that seem to rule our days—making the homeliest life perfect in its every tiny detail."

College of Applied Science

DEAN LOWRY NELSON

THROUGH the departments of agronomy, animal husbandry, drafting, home economics, horticulture, mechanic arts, and rural social economics, the College of Applied Science appeals to three main groups of students: first, those students who wish to prepare for vocations of agriculture, home economics, or the various fields of mechanic arts; secondly, the students who wish to prepare for teaching, and related work upon graduation; and thirdly, those students who plan to do specialized work in some chosen field after graduation here. For this latter group, preparatory work in architecture, mechanical, structural, electrical, and civil engineering, landscape architecture, advanced graduate work in all fields of agriculture and home economics may be had.

Graduates in agriculture are now doing advanced work on fellowships at Iowa State College, Rutgers University, Massachusetts Agricultural College, Oregon State College, Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station, Michigan Agricultural College, Cornell University, and Montana State College.

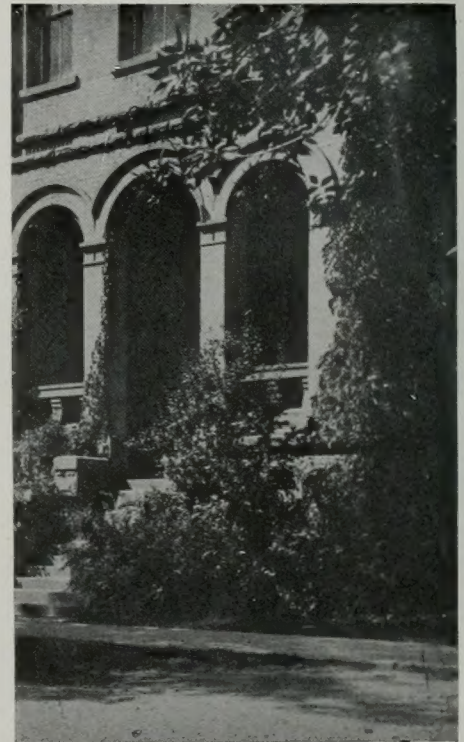

Other graduates are employed as teachers, county agents, Smith-Hughes workers, crop pest inspectors, and as farmers, business and professional men, and home makers in the Intermountain West.

Extension Division

ORGANIZED in 1920, the Extension Division has grown steadily in the number of contacts which it makes with the people of the West. Upwards of 500 men and women are at present receiving academic instruction off the campus. Added to this number are several literary clubs which are following courses of study outlined by members of the University faculty, and published by this division. The miscellaneous lectures delivered by the members of the faculty throughout the year before ward assemblies, dinner clubs, scientific societies, leadership institutes, both here and in other localities, reach tens of thousands annually.

Not only by the spoken word is the message of B. Y. U. carried beyond the confines of the campus. The exceptional music and dramatic talent produced each year at the "Y" is given an opportunity to visit communities of Utah and neighboring states. The Division works in close cooperation with the Public Service Bureau of the Student Body in supplying programs for community organizations.

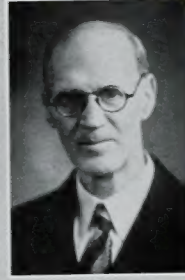

We are in the midst of a world-wide movement for adult education. The Extension Division represents the organized contribution of Brigham Young University to that movement.

Student Government

ANTHONY I. BENTLEY

“TONY” has proved to be one of the most popular student body leaders ever to fill the office of president. Coming from Old Mexico, he very early gained recognition from his schoolmates, and his circle of friends has continually widened.

A friendly smile, a bit of encouragement to all, a sense of service, and superb sportsmanship have all combined to make “Tony” an outstanding personality on the campus. As a representative of the school he is admirably adapted in any capacity, and besides his job as executive, he has brought many honors to B. Y. U. in the field of athletics.

For his many accomplishments, his friendship, loyalty, and devotion to duty, the students are all proud of their student body president.

TO aid and encourage “Tony” in the many duties of his office, the student body made an excellent choice in the election of Evelyn to the office of vice-president. Culture, refinement, and poise have blended in her to mould a most charming personality, and her smile and cheery greeting for everybody has won the esteem and admiration.

Evelyn has brought a great deal of credit to the University through her musical ability. Being an accomplished performer on the Hawaiian guitar, she has entertained in numberless programs throughout the state. Many of the splendid student body programs this year have been a direct result of her effort.

Because of her charm, her friendliness, and continual service, Evelyn has endeared herself to the hearts of her innumerable friends, and all cherish her friendship.

Associated Women Students

LIVING up to their aim of greater socialization of the individual, the Associated Women Students of the University have had a full program of activities during the year. In the Fall Quarter, three get-acquainted parties were held; the Winter Quarter saw "A Night Among the Stars," the girls' jamboree, taking place. The main project, however, was the annual Girls' Day, celebrated on May 2. The play, "Dear Brutus," a special assembly program, the traditional banquet in honor of the Mothers, the Girls' Day dance, the short story contest, were all features of a most successful celebration.

Gertrude Partridge, president, and Ella Farnsworth, vice-president, have served commendably as officers.

Public Service Bureau

THE Public Service Bureau, always an important activity at B. Y. U., has reached more people this year than ever before. Under the capable leadership of Delbert Groberg, the Bureau has endeavored, first, to furnish better programs which would contribute to the enrichment of the lives of those people in whose communities they were given; secondly, to provide opportunity for talented students to gain valuable experiences in appearing before the public; thirdly, to give the school first-class publicity.

Splendid cooperation on the part of student entertainers has contributed in no little way to the success of programs given over a wide-spread area.

Junior Prom Committee

THE chief social function of the year, the Junior Prom, was a spectacular event. The hard-working and willing committee deserves unstinted commendation for their good work in making it successful.

Clarence Taylor, Josinette Cook, and Hannah Reynolds supervised the decorations; Leonard Bacon and Paul Huish directed the construction and lighting; Joe Allen was in charge of invitations and refreshments; the advertising was done under the direction of Dix Jones.

The committee was ably assisted by, and owes much of its success to James Cullimore, together with other officers and members of the Junior Class.

Sophomore Loan Fund Committee

THE Sophomore Loan Fund Committee made no effort to disguise the fact that they were engaged in a pecuniary activity this year. In their advertising and decorations the sign of the dollar was a prominent motif. That it was also a very worthy activity was likewise stressed, and the committee had the satisfaction of seeing the funds of this commendable project of the Sophomores considerably augmented by their efforts.

Brigham Young High School

ALTHOUGH few in number, the student body of B. Y. High has demonstrated that quality is not dependent upon quantity. An excellent corps of student body officers has led the way, and under the executive action of this group a fine program of activities has been carried out.

The same high standard of ideals which characterizes the student body of the University, find fertile ground for growth here. Many of the prominent students of the higher institutions are products of the prep school.

Basketball

A FAIRLY good season was experienced by the H. S. courtiers under the coaching of Buck Dixon. This was Buck's first year as men'tor for the preps, and although the team didn't rate very high in the percentage column, most games were lost by a scant margin which, with the right breaks might have seen the opponents on the smaller end.

Play

THE annual competitive play was "Boomerang" this year. A splendid cast, well-coached by Phyllis Adams presented a finished effort to an appreciative audience. Helen and Beth Romney assisted in the direction.

REED THORNTON, DIXIE MANGUM, WILMA SWAPP, PAUL JACOBSON, HELEN NEWELL, LYMAN PARTRIDGE, VIVIAN MERRILL.

OPERA

Miss Maybeth Bowman, instructor in the training school, was in charge of the presentation of the first High School opera. "The Belle of Bagdad" was the choice for the initial effort along this line, and was very well received.

DEBATING

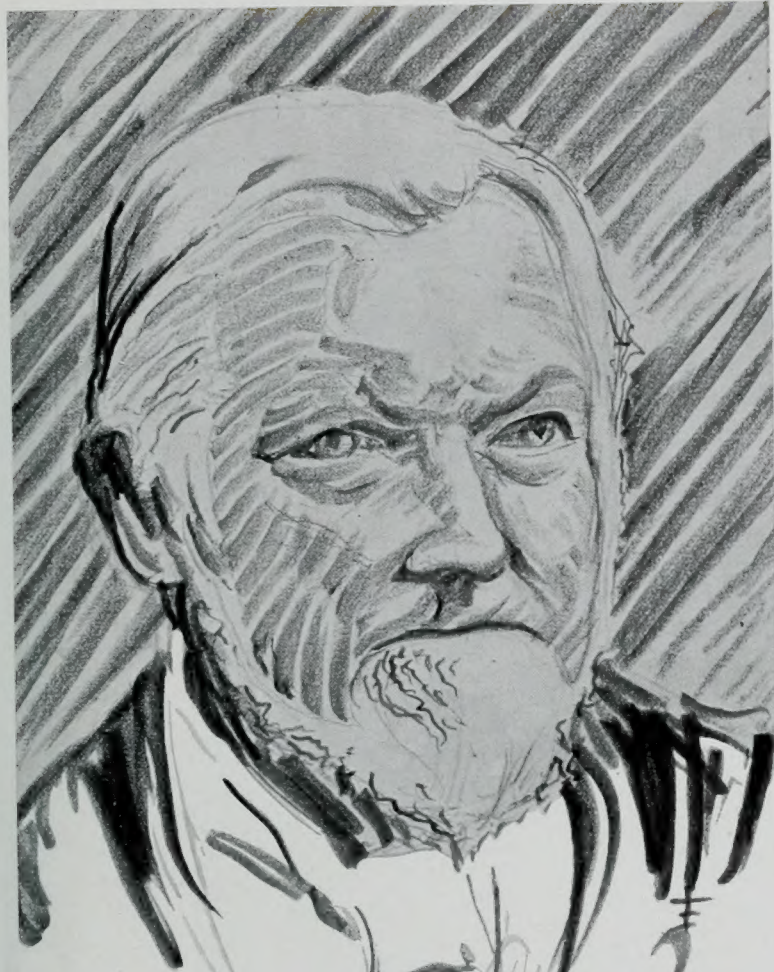

The "Y" High School debating team, coached by Miss Gladys Black, attained a new pinnacle of success, winning a place in the state finals this year. Here the two teams won third place for the school.

PEPETTES

Organized for the purpose of promoting school spirit and pep, the Pepettes have succeeded admirably in the accomplishment of their aim. They have managed to sponsor social events as well, and the outstanding function of this nature was the dinner dance at Hotel Roberts.

SEPTEMBER

From vacationing in various ways and places, September brings us back to school. From the near country and the far corners, students respond to the Spirit of the "Y" and come to the University where a glad HELLO is the pass-word into the friendship of any one.

The first week or two, we spend getting registered, located and stocked with text-books.

FROSH RULES
 No. 1. No smoking in school buildings.
 No. 2. No drinking in school buildings.
 No. 3. No profanity in school buildings.
 No. 4. No disorderly conduct in school buildings.

SEPTEMBER

At first, only the Frosh feel the pressure of school life. Some of their restrictions, penalties and activities are illustrated here. We also have on this page the Senior Solon and the Soph Subjugator.

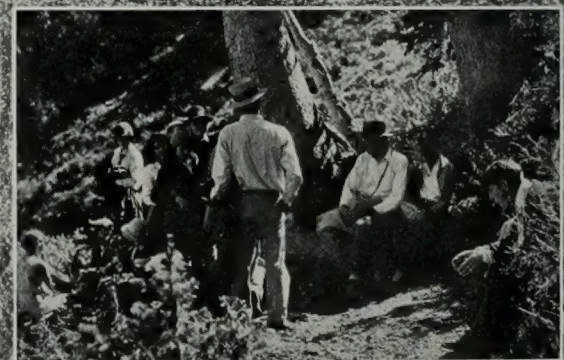

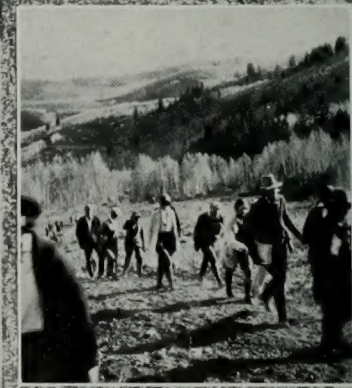

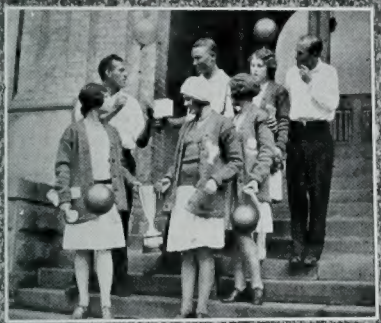

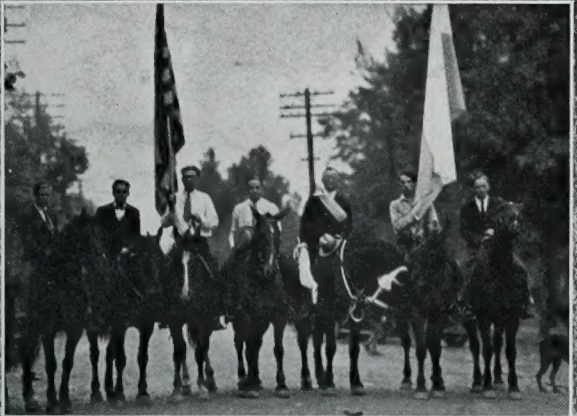

OCTOBER

The annual Autumn-leaf hike to "Timp" has become one of the traditions of the school. The mountain, in the glory of its October coloring is an inspiration to the nature lover.

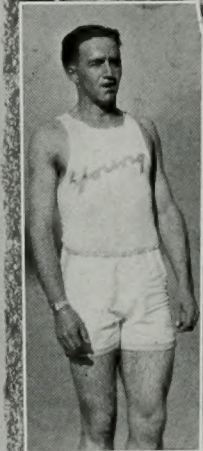

OCTOBER

On Founder's Day, we honor those who made possible the establishment of this Institution and review the past in order to gain a better perspective from which to pre-view the future of our B. Y. U.

NOVEMBER

By this time, we know pretty much Who's Who and What's What. We have told our best vacation stories to all who will believe them and met a lot of new friends.

The Seniors won the Thanksgiving Cross-Country run and had, beside the holiday, a slice of Turkey to be thankful for.

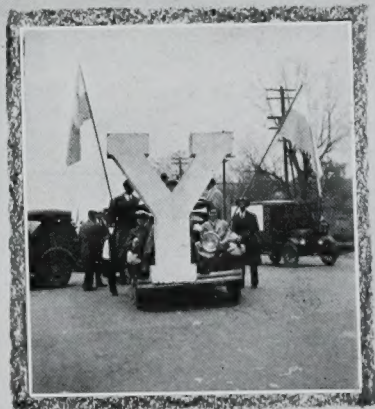

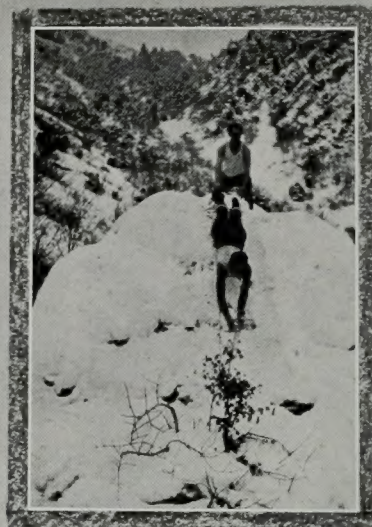

NOVEMBER

College really means more than five days a week. These pictures are all dated on Saturday. (There are advantages to working while going to school. One can make a better story of his early struggles for the benefit of the next generation.)

DECEMBER

When Winter strikes full blast, we stay in and look out whenever possible—that is, in the day time. In the evenings, well—with the fall quarter just ended and the Christmas Holidays coming, we feel justified in celebrating.

JANUARY

The height of the season for stiff fronts and decollete backs comes with the formals of the winter quarter. Just as much fun, even if we don't feel as sophisticated about them, are the less formal dances and the novelty parties.

To most of us, Keeleys, The Hotel, the friend's apartment, etc., are a part of school as truly as the labs and class rooms.

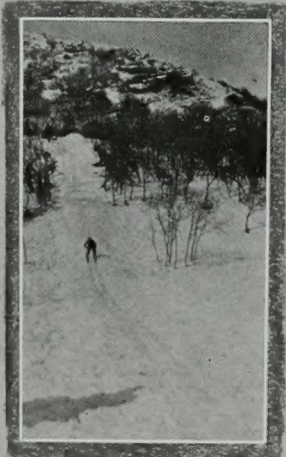

FEBRUARY

For those of us who revel in out-of-door winter sports, the Ice and Snow Carnival, at Vivian Park in Provo Canyon, furnishes the best opportunity of the year, to slide and tumble in the snow to our heart's content.

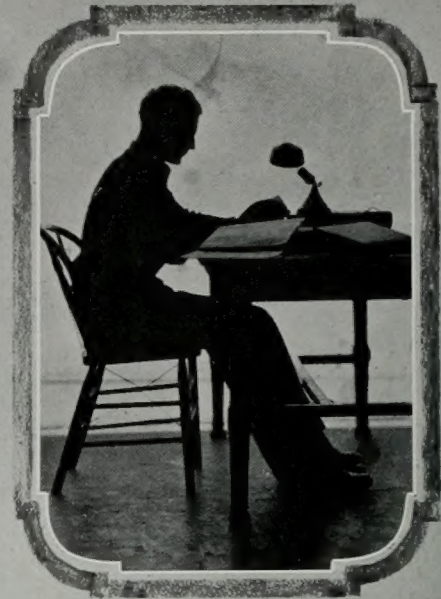

This page we can't definitely assign to any time or season for here we have about 5-7 varieties, depicting a number of things from the escape of the mascot, to students figuring in assembly programs; the selling of loan fund tickets and some of us relaxing from the grind of study.

MARCH

Even those of us who aim to be ultra "collegiate" and scorn anything so plebian as lessons, have to study once in a while. The winter quarter ended in March and after all the activities that took our time in February, most of us had plenty to do.

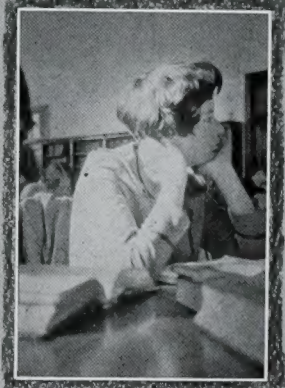

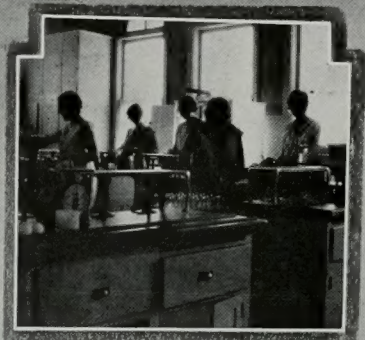

APRIL

Fortunately a new quarter begins about the time the weather warms up. This relieves the pressure somewhat, for "In the Spring—" whatever our fancy turns to, it seems to be far away from study; but by April who can blame us, for Spring—is Spring.

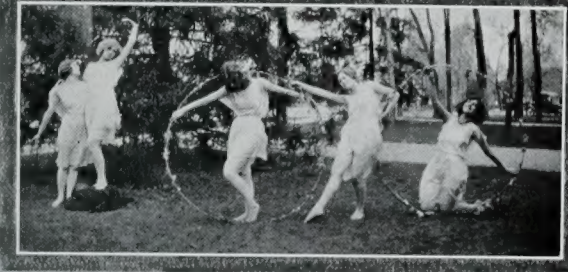

APRIL

On "Y" Day, school patriotism runs high, even without the excitement of an inter-collegiate athletic clash. For the love of the dear old school the men work to clean the campus and give the letter on the mountain its annual coat of white while the girls work to feed the boys. This may be for the love of the school but we have heard an old saying about the highway to masculine hearts, that makes us wonder.

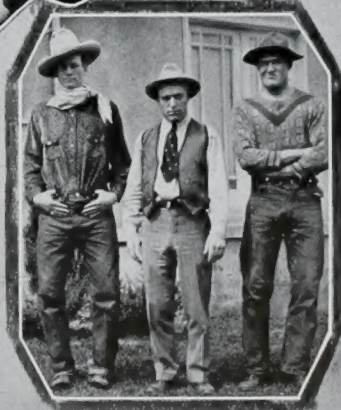

MAY

A college circus is just that much more fun than any other kind, for we're the animals and the clowns and the dancers and the oddities. It's colorful; it's collegiate; it's carnival.

In contrast to this is the charm and loveliness of the girl's day Spring time festival. Perhaps some people think this is one-sided and doesn't concern the fellows but perhaps —some people are wrong.

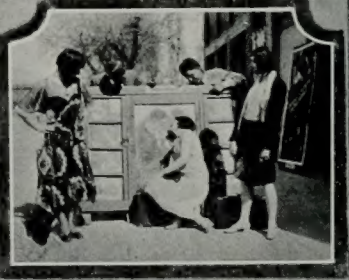

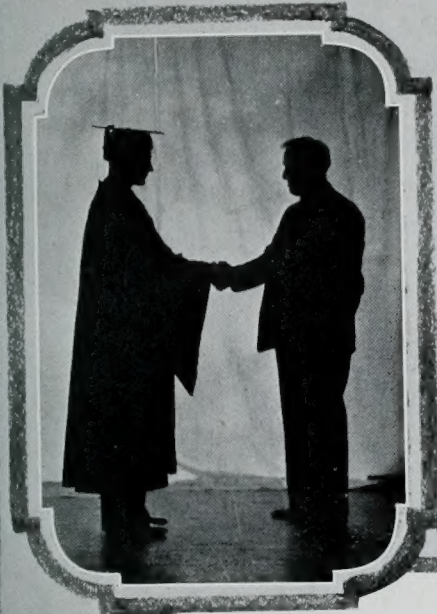

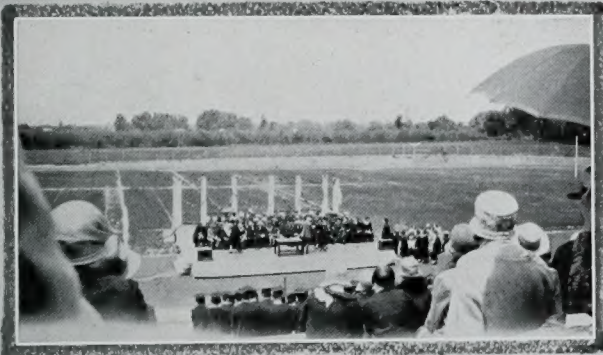

MAY

What we do when Spring is here full bloom and we simply can't study, is an individual matter. We went picture taking and here are some of the things our camera caught. We apologize for some of these for we realize that in a few cases, only the moon, which has absolutely no scruples and winks at anything, should have been looking on.

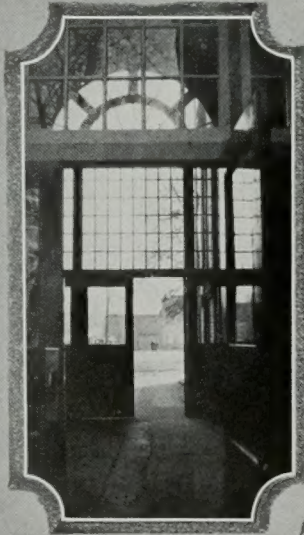

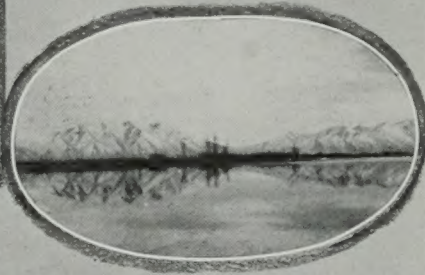

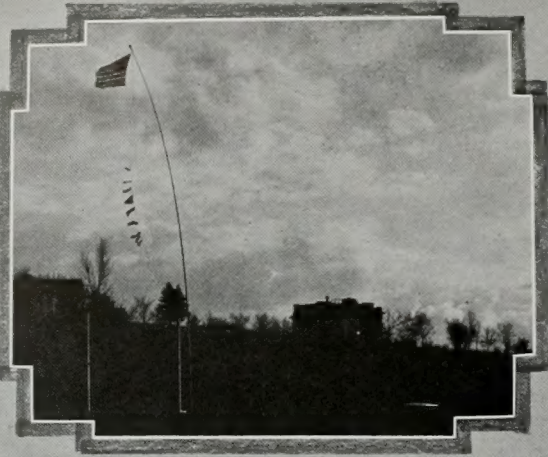

JUNE

The graduate leaves the Alma Mater rather sadly for much of youth remains behind in the echoing halls, and the school has grown dear thru the years of associations; yet he goes gladly, for he steps thru the portal into the world of men with conquering heart and unconquerable spirit. To him belongs the future.

The year is ended and the campus, for a time, will be deserted. Yet if one chances to linger, he somehow feels the presence of the scores of students who have come and gone. The shadows creep out of the corners and the leaves on the trees bend closer, to whisper to him of these college days that have so soon become Shadows of the Past.

FERDY

SMITTY

IT is true that the members of the teams are the ones who lay down their lives for the cause, but the yellmasters are the dynamos which furnish the spark to touch off the enthusiasm which inspires such sacrifice. With a cheering, whole-hearted student body behind them, Young's athletes have won many a victory, and defeat has not been nearly so bitter if the loss was taken with a cheer.

For four years Fred Moore has led "Y" rooters and it is not without regret that his graduation is noted this year. "Ferdy" has certainly played his part in past victories of the Cougars.

Enthusiastic assistance was given this year by Rosy Snow, Smith Jacobs and Harold Van Wagenen. No one can say that there is a better group of cheer leaders on any campus.

The Junior Prom

ALL the glory of ancient Aztec civilization was incarnate in the Ladies' Gym on the night of the Junior Prom. Amid crumbling ruins, exotic foliage, and hieroglyphic-carved stone, one was transported to the time when the culture of this people was at its height.

Refreshments that might have stimulated some ancient Redskin were enjoyed by the dancers. Joy was brought to the feminine hearts by the presentation of sterling silver bracelets, wrought in Indian fashion, as favors.

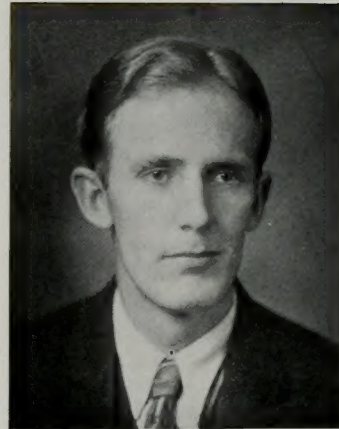

Long will the memory of that evening of Aztec gaiety be remembered by all who were present that night.

The Banyan

THE Banyan of 1930 is presented to you by the staff with the hope that it will meet with your approval. Only those who have worked through weary days and dreamed through long nights can appreciate the constant effort and application it has required.

A limited budget has necessitated the minimizing of expense, and in order to achieve this we have had to compress our ideals within a circumscribed boundary. In doing so we have been forced to forego many things which have been features of other Banyans. But as a matter of fact, we have tried to make this annual a book entirely different than any volume of preceding years. We have not felt like expending a large sum in an over-emphasized Banyan, believing that you would appreciate the more artistic appeal.

The theme of the book is one which naturally presented itself. The motifs of most college annuals could be used with equal success by any number of different books, but there is only one University in the entire world which could utilize with propriety the Centennial of Mormonism as a theme. The founding of this Church, while very remote, made possible the existence today of our beloved school in this choicest of locations. In the developing of our theme we have made an innovation in the art work of an opening section. For this work we are indebted to the staff artist, Euray Anderson, who worked with an interest unimpeachable to create it.

We have tried to give you a better calendar section, and in doing so have made another innovation which you will readily perceive. We honestly feel that in most respects we have made a decided improvement in the athletic section.

We have made mistakes, to be sure, but our efforts have been in the interests of a representative year book which will vividly return to your minds memories of these happy days at B.Y.U.

The "Y" News

IT is, indeed, an arduous task to efficiently care for the publication of two issues of a college newspaper weekly, but the job has been done with neatness and dispatch by the staff of the "Y" News for this year. The News has verily been a paper for the students, and its appearance on the campus every Tuesday and Friday is a much-looked-for event.

Paulson is to be commended on the mechanical make-up of his paper. This has been done in the approved journalistic fashion, and has meant much in the attractive appearance of the News. The editorial policy has been one of conservatism for the most part, which has made a wide appeal to thinking students.

Introducing columnists of a new order this year, Jean has treated the student body to an enjoyable type of humor. He has kept in touch with the activities of other universities, and these have been duly reported on this campus.

Paying particular attention to sports, an excellent department has been conducted by Hettig. This field has been covered with thoroughness and ability, every phase being touched.

All in all, and speaking from the student's viewpoint, the "Y" News has been a pleasing all-around newspaper of which the staff may well be proud.

The Scratch

THE "Scratch" first appeared on the campus of the "Y" in May, 1929. It was published to meet the desire for a literary magazine which had long been felt by the students. This year, three editions were printed, one for each quarter, and it is believed that the success of this quarterly magazine has assured its future.

The first number to be printed this year came in December and carried out a Christmas theme. The next issue came out in March, and had an Indian motif, while the final number appeared in May and depicted Pioneer life.

The aim of the staff was to make the magazine entirely representative both as to the type of work published and the authors from which it came. As a result, a number of manuscripts were received from students and faculty members in almost every department of the school. Essays, short stories, poetry, satires, and formal articles were among the features.

The work of the editor, Edna Ball, has been of a very high order this year and because of her effort the "Scratch" has furnished an excellent medium of expression for those who are of a literary mind. It has encouraged appreciation in the field of literature and art.

Forensics

THE importance and value of intercollegiate forensics have long been appreciated at Brigham Young University, and the reputation of the school has been built up over a long period of activity in this field. B. Y. U. debaters are known throughout the West for their ability to think clearly and reason logically on the platform.

This year a new record was made here both in the number of debates held and the number of men and women participating. Twenty debaters received awards for representing the school in eighteen debates. Forensic relations were opened with a number of schools which promises to extend the friendly activities of the "Y" into new and wider fields.

The inter-class debates were of an exceedingly high order, and were won by Lynn Broadbent and Bert Lewis of the Junior class, and Boyd Nelson and Frank Harris representing the Sophomores. The question used was the same one discussed in the triangle debates.

The triangles held this year were of the no-decision type, the first time in history that these contests have been conducted in this manner. They proved very successful, however, and no little interest was attached to them because of the question discussed. It was, "Resolved: That the plan as outlined by the United States Tax Association be used as a basis for tax revision in Utah." The problem involved is, of course, eternally interesting to all who pay taxes, and to the farmer in particular. Because of this, the teams travelled throughout central Utah discussing the question before large and enthusiastic gatherings of agriculturists. Brigham Young was represented by Vernon Wentz and Delbert Groberg, arguing negatively, and Roald Campbell and Dix Jones upholding the affirmative.

U. S. A. C. had no women debaters in the triangles this year, so these became a dual meet between the "Y" and the "U." The disarmament question was the bone of contention, and Utah annexed the victory in both cases. The "Y" debaters were: Gertrude Partridge, Georgia Dimick, and Helen Romney, affirmative; and Hazel Aagard, Vilda Jessen, and Blanche Thomas, negative.

On March 19, Golden Tueller and Lowell Johnson met the forensic artists of Southern California, and took the short end of the judges' decision on the disarmament question. Debating the negative, the locals appeared to have a better grasp of the question, but their oratory was less convincing to the arbiters than was that of the Californians.

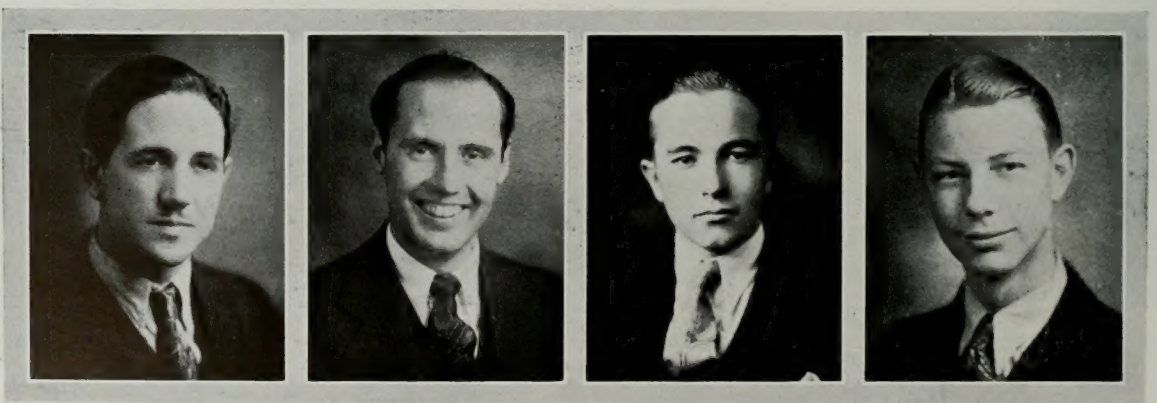

The same team again met representatives from warmer climes when they argued the same questions with men from California Tech. Once more the land of orange blossoms and publicity triumphed, for the decision went to Tech.

The question of the European indictment of American culture came in for consideration next, and in this contest John Dalton and Maurice Miles emerged victorious over the team from Whitman College. Dalton and Miles were debating for the first time in college circles.

In a no-decision debate on advertising that proved very interesting and one of the best of the season, Ray Peterson and Claude Eggertson met the University of Colorado here on March 25. Both teams displayed keen wit and clever analysis.

Disarmament once more appeared prominently when Lynn Broadbent and Wright Welker discussed it with Washington State. The "Y" team, participating in their first inter-collegiate debate, did very well, but lost the decision. This was the only men's team to argue the affirmative of disarmament. They lost to Redlands and won from Montana State in the conflict that closed the season on April 28.

The most successful part of the entire season, judged from the standpoint of victories won, was the trip into the Northwest made by Roald Campbell and Vernon Wentz, accompanied by A. C. Lambert of the Debate Council. These men made a clean sweep of their four debates with Montana State, Washington State, Whitman, and Willamette.

Music

THE Music Department of Brigham Young University has for a number of years enjoyed an enviable reputation in the Intermountain West. No small part of this has been due to the members of its teaching staff. That the head of this department is one of the leading musicians of the West is attested by the fact that she was selected by the promoters of the San Gabriel Mission Play in California to direct the musical work in that production. This task has taken Professor Madsen away from the University a considerable part of the time during the past two years, but in her absence the work here has been admirably carried on by other members of the department.

PROFESSOR
FLORENCE J. MADSEN

The Band

ONE of the organizations at B. Y. U. which occasions a feeling of pride is the exceptionally fine band. At every athletic contest these musicians have contributed toward the measure of victory. The members have risen in the early hours of the morning to give the basketball or football teams a hearty send-off when those warriors have been leaving for conflicts on foreign soil. They have accompanied the athletes to every field within the state, and they are known throughout Utah by their programs given on concert tours in the past.

A big project was undertaken in an attempt to purchase new suits. It was impossible to procure them for this year's activities, but there is an assurance that a gaily, bedecked B. Y. U. band will make its appearance at the beginning of next year.

No where can there be found a more ardent supporter of student body activities than Professor Robert Sauer, band leader. Possessing ability and leadership far above the average, he has been ready and willing to fill any need which might arise. Under his tutelage the band has developed until it is second to none in the entire West.

Mixed Chorus

NO one organization has appeared as often in devotional programs as has the mixed chorus. It is comprised for the most part of the combined membership of the Male Glee Club and the Ladies' Glee Club with the addition of a few other singers. In the absence of Prof. Florence J. Madsen, Professor Sauer has taken charge of the chorus this year, and his work with it has proved most successful.

The year's program has included two concerts in College Hall which were excellently given and well received by an appreciative audience. The most noted appearance of the chorus, however, was in the Salt Lake Tabernacle during the April Conference. The greatest distinction received by the group come as a result of two National Broadcasts from KSL. These concerts were heard all over the United States, and many favorable reports were received from various parts of the country from those who listened in.

Orchestra

CONTRIBUTING not a little to the value and enjoyment of excellent Devotional programs, and yet not being listed thereon, is the distinction of the orchestra. Every Devotional period is brought to an end with march music which "plays out" the students. This music is alternately furnished by the orchestra and the band.

Dean De Jong has directed the orchestra most of this year, taking it over when Professor Robertson left for the coast. He arranged, as part of the year's program, an evening of Tschaiikowsky, a concert in which nothing was played but music from the great Russian composer. This proved to be a very popular effort and was enjoyed by a large audience.

The orchestra has become prominent not only as a unit in itself, but as a means of accompaniment for other noted musicians. Upon several occasions such accompaniment has been furnished for soloists and choral groups.

Ladies' Glee Club

MISS MARGARET SUMMERHAYS has been in charge of the Ladies' Glee Club this year, and under her direction an enviable record has been made by the group. A concert tour into southern Utah, a specially prepared concert given during leadership week, and the presentation of the cantata, "Gallea," were the features of an interesting year's activity.

Male Glee Club

WITH the return of Professor Franklin Madsen after a year's study in Chicago, where he obtained his Doctor's degree. Dr. Madsen is admirably equipped for the task of directing as large a group as this, and he has handled the largest male glee clubs ever to be seen in this school. Local concerts and two concert tours into Idaho and southern Utah were the prominent features of the program.

Dramatics

AIMING to present a varied program of plays during the year, the Dramatics department, under the direction of Alonzo Morley, has produced a total of twelve three-act plays and thirty one-act plays. Besides providing pleasing entertainment, the work has manifested an intelligent understanding of the art of drama.

Captain Paul Thorne

“GIVE it to Simba!” and “Let Simba carry it over!” were two oft repeated and significant cries heard from the football fans this year. Paul’s remarkable strength, unfaltering courage, and dogged stamina could always be relied upon when a few yards were needed for first down or a touchdown.

Playing brilliant ball at halfback throughout the entire season, Thorne very worthily earned as soubriquet the name of the African lion whose qualities he displayed as captain of this year’s team. “Simba” will be affectionately remembered for his fine work by those who leave school this year, and expectantly watched by everyone next year.

Captain-Elect Elmer Dastrup

THE team’s choice of “Andy” Dastrup for next year’s captain is most commendable, for “Dass”, playing guard, did not have the opportunity to make the spectacular plays which thrill the crowds and capture the fickle acclaim of the grandstands. The choice, therefore, is a sincere and well-merited tribute to his ability.

Andy has, this year, displayed a true love of the game, energetic determination, and unlimited grit, even refusing to stay out of a crucial contest, although he was suffering from a painful leg injury at the time. Beloved and admired by his team mates, a great deal is expected of him next when he leads the 1930 Cougars to victory.

Coaching Staff

WITH the coming of Ott Romney to the "Y," Cougar hopes took a sudden spurt skyward. Since that time Brigham Young athletic teams have reached a high standard. Many laurels have been brought to the school by them, and "the end is not yet." This year, the grid game reached its peak thus far when the big blue team finished third in the Conference race with losses only to Montana State and the champions, Utah. With only four members of the 1929 squad lost through graduation, and an array of freshmen talent from the greenling team second to none in the state, the Cougars are to be a much-feared team next year.

Romney has worked not only with the teams but with the student body as well in an attempt to build up a fighting morale that carries through. His success has been very gratifying and the future should bear golden fruits as a result of his efforts.

An excellent staff has been on the job from the start to assist in the building of champion Cougar teams. "Chick" Hart, former Aggie star, as assistant coach and director of intra-mural sports; Buck Dixon, who scintillated for the "Y" not long ago, as Frosh coach; Bob Howard, also a Cougar mainstay of other days, as assistant line coach; "Tobe" Raile, trainer par excellence, ertswile wrestler and ball player of B. Y. U.—these have all done yoeman service and must come in for their share of glory.

We here pause to honor one who spared neither time nor effort in his work as head line coach, and whose knowledge and skill helped to build the magnificent Cougar squad of this year. Long will the memory of "Phil" Jackson linger with the athletes and students of Brigham Young. The gridsters have lost a fine friend and instructor and the athletic department will miss the services of an excellent coach.

THE Cougars played four practice games, winning from Greenriver U. P. and Nevada, tying the Alumni squad, and losing to California Aggies under a blistering southern sun.

The squad played the first conference game with Montana State in the "Y" stadium. Faulty generalship and breaks at critical moments gave Montana a one-point victory, the score being 13-12. It was a heartbreaker for the "Y" to lose after having outplayed the Bobcats throughout the game. The Northerners made both touchdowns in the first half, one resulting from a 66-yard run by DeFrate, and the last one being garnered by means of a couple of long passes. The Cougars came back fighting mad and soon scored two touchdowns of their own, but Lilyfoot's heretofore trusted toe failed him and he missed both tries for goal. With that misfortune the "Y's" chance for victory was gone.

The week following this upset, the Cougars made football history when, for the first time they defeated another Utah team. After being outplayed by the Farmers for three quarters, and trailing them 6-0 at the beginning of the fourth period, the Young squad seemed doomed to meet its second Conference defeat. But the never-say-die spirit manifested itself and the blue warriors came back with a rush that completely bewildered the Aggies. Taking the ball on their own 30-yard line, the big blue team started a march up the field that led 70 yards to a touchdown. So vicious and certain was that glorious fourth-period attack that several Aggie players who gave their best had to be carried from the field. Line bucks, beautifully executed passes from Hoover's hands that landed safely in the waiting arms of Reeves, and eleven fighting Cougars, each doing his share, aided in the memorable trek to Aggie's goal. It was truly a great day in the making of football history for the "Y."

Having tasted victory, the "Y" continued winning, by downing Western State in the "Y" stadium 33-12. Both teams started slowly, and interest was waning until the last of the first quarter, when Vacher went into the game. This little elusive back immediately started things going, when on the first play he ran thirty yards around right end. The whole team, inspired by "Clug's" presence in the lineup, started functioning, and the score at the half was "Y" 20, Western State 0. Colorado, using some surprise "freak" plays scored twice in the second half, but the "Y" continued scoring also. Hoover's punting was exceptionally good this game, averaging fifty-one yards per kick, and his passes were instrumental in nearly all the "Y's" scores.

Although beaten by a lopsided score by the champion Utes, the game was much more interesting and close than the score would indicate. More real spectacular football was crowded into the sixty minute battle between the blue and red warriors than is ordinarily seen during a season.

B. Y. U. was great in defense. Utah was outplayed the first quarter and the inspired Blue team threatened to score twice. "Y" crossed Utah's goal line twice, the only team in the conference to score more than one touchdown on Utah this year. But for some unfortunate breaks, the score would have been a great deal different. It is hard to pick any individual stars, every man gave his best. Basil Skousen played the best game of his career. Vacher, playing with an injured knee, scintillated. It was Utah's heavier and more experienced line that gave them victory, the two backfields, being about even.

the fans in the "Y" stadium, the "Y" won from Colorado Teachers 25-13. The game was fast and spectacular, despite the cold weather. Captain Thorn played one of his best games, running the ends and battering the line hard throughout.

The Cougars, living up to their reputation of saving the best game for the last, romped all over Wyoming to the tune of 40-0 in the "Y" stadium, thereby clinching third place in the conference standing. The "Y" played faultless ball all the way, and it was only a matter of how much the score would be. Hoover passed brilliantly, and Vacher and Thorn gained consistently through the line, and around the ends.

It was a fitting close to a successful season, and hopes for a championship team next year are high.

Frosh Football

THE freshmen football team set up a record for coming freshmen teams to shoot at. They went through the season undefeated, and played one tie game, besides winning the state championship, which is no small achievement against Utah and Aggie Frosh elevens.

During the season the frosh met and defeated Snow Junior College, the strong Weber Junior College eleven, and ran away from Grand Junction, Colorado, defeating them by a large score. In state competition with our sister institutions, they beat Utah, 7-0, and tied U. S. A. C., 0-0. As the Utahns beat Utah Aggies, the victory over the Ute frosh gave the Cougar Kittens undisputed claim on the State championship.

Many brilliant individual performers were uncovered during the season, and those youthful stars should add considerable strength to the varsity next year. Following are their scores for the season:

Basketball

Captain George Cooper

“COOP” as “Y” basketball fans know him, is one of the steadiest and greatest guards in the conference. His leadership this year has been a valuable asset to the team, and has won for him the respect and admiration of all his teammates, as well as the fans who were fortunate enough to watch him play. Cooper will be back next year, and we look for him to bring even greater glory to himself and the “Y.”

Captain-Elect Russell Magelby

THE election of “Maggie” by his teammates was a natural thing, following a most brilliant season. His record of ten points per game plus his all-around play, stamped him as one of the outstanding players in the conference, and won for him the coveted position of all-conference guard. Russ hails from Monroe, where he played four years of high school ball. He then played two years for Snow College, before entering the “Y.” He will be playing his fourth and last year for B. Y. U. in the 1930 season, and promises to finish his basketball career by leading the team to a conference championship, which is not at all improbable.

THE Cougar quint started the season spectacularly by winning eight out of nine games played on a holiday trip through southern Utah and California. Their only loss was to the powerful U. C. L. A. quint. They scored victories over the the Los Angeles Athletic Club, the Hollywood Athletic Club, Pacific Coast Athletic Club, and the University of California at Los Angeles, some of the strongest teams on the coast. In two other pre-season contests, the blue quint decisively won from Nevada.

The conference season for the "Y" opened Friday, January 17 at Provo, with Utah Aggies, who, the week before, had surprised by beating Utah twice. The Cougars, playing off form, lost the first game by two points, but came back the second night with vengeance to win by fifteen points. In this game the "Y" offensive was at its best, functioning in a beautiful manner.

The next week Montana State College came here for two never-to-be-forgotten contests. "Y" lost the first night, but won the second. The last game was undoubtedly the fastest, most spectacular basketball that has been seen here in many a year, and when the battle had ended, the score read "Y", 45, Montana, 42. Although every player starred, it was Magelby who was the outstanding performer on the floor, Russ scored 22 points and held his forward to a minimum of shots at the basket.

The unexpected happened in the series with the U. of U. played in the Deseret Gym. The Cougars, now a highly-touted aggregation, played the poorest ball of the season and practically handed both games to the Redskins with their compliments. These losses proved to be the ones that ruined the "Y's" chances to cop the conference bunting.

THE B. Y. U. partially redeemed itself the following week-end at Bozeman, Montana, when they surprised conference dopesters and took the first game, 47-40. The Bobcats, playing their last home game, and displaying the brand of championship ball which had previously won three conference championships, easily took the second game.

At Logan, B. Y. U. again split the series, taking the first game and losing the second. Inaccuracy in shooting, was the cause of the second night's loss, numerous set-ups being missed, especially in the last half, when a basket or two might have changed defeat into victory.

Playing their last conference games of the season in their own lair, Young played sensational ball to take two games from Utah, pushing the Utes into the cellar position and giving the "Y" third place in the conference standing, only one game behind the Aggies and Montana who were tied for first.

Track

Track

CAPTAIN BRAD JENSEN

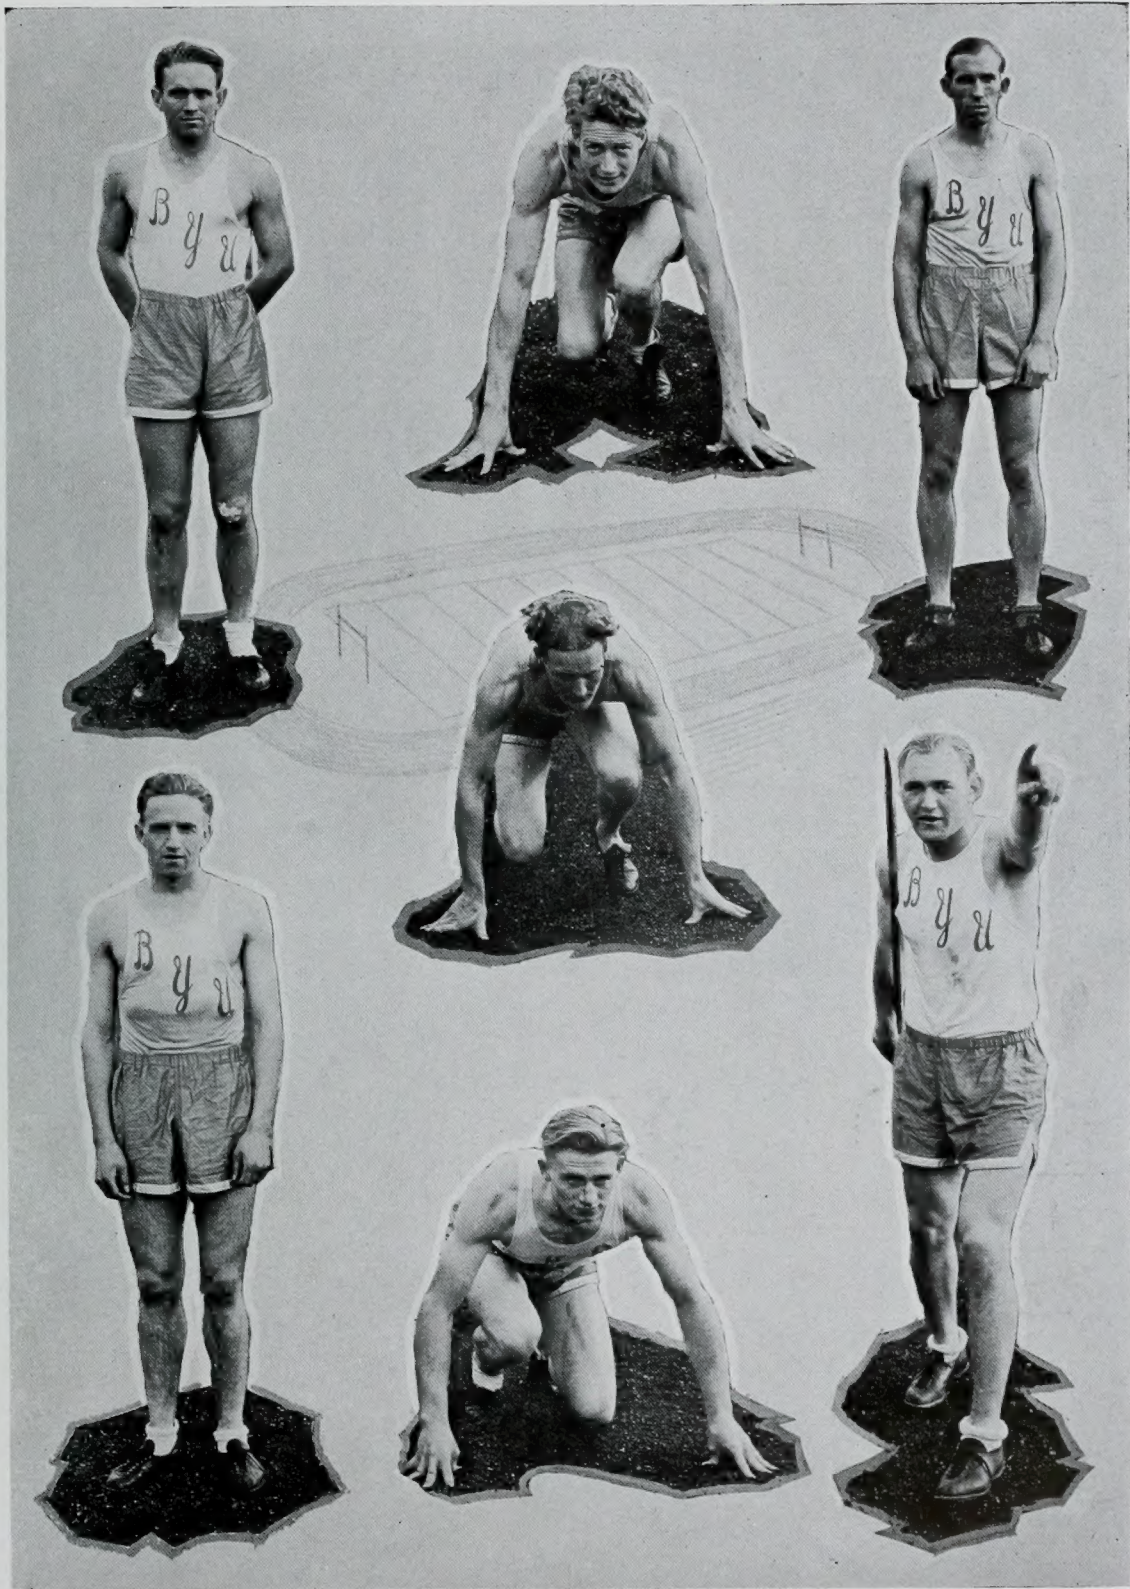

THE loss of B. Y. U.'s famous Owen Rowe was keenly felt in this year's track meets. Although the Cougars were strong and were given chances of taking both meets, they lost to the U. S. A. C. and to the Utes. The Aggie victory on April 18-19, although close, the score being  $70\frac{1}{2}$  to  $74\frac{1}{2}$ , was a distinct surprise, the last race of the day deciding the tussle. During the meet, Rasmussen, Bentley, Nelson, Reeves and Griffiths, took first place and the "Y" won the 880-yard relay, but lost the mile race which decided the meet.

On May 10, "Lillyfoot" Reeves added interest to the track contest with Utah, by shattering his own state record of 144.6 feet in the hammer throw when he heaved the ball and chain out 146.7 feet, and by smashing the state and R. M. C. record of 143 feet  $3\frac{3}{4}$  inches in the discus throw. His new mark is 145.5 feet. B. Y. U. made a clean sweep in the hammer throw, the discus throw and the javelin, but Utah's powerful track team won easily in the majority of cinder events. They took a total of eleven first places to B. Y. U.'s six. The Redskins made a clean sweep in the high hurdles and allowed but a half point in the high jump. The score of the meet was  $86\frac{1}{2}$  to  $56\frac{1}{2}$  in favor of the Redskins.

Wrestling

ALTHOUGH the B. Y. U. had but four veterans, Goe, Cropper, Moody and Thurgood, to form a nucleus for this year's wrestling squad, she had an abundance of green but strong and willing material with which, in course of the season, Coaches Cote and Raille built up a remarkably fast and clever team. Thurgood, because of a recent severe illness was unable to participate extensively during the meets.

Actual wrestling activities began January 14, 15, and 17, with the intramurals during which considerable promising speed and many newly learned intricate holds were exhibited.

Their lack of sufficient training and polish were contributing factors to the defeat of our men at Logan, January 25, when they met last year's Rocky Mountain Conference Champions from the Utah State Agricultural College. The "Y" fellows won only three of the eight matches to lose by a score of 21 to 11. The three victorious men were Moody, Rutherford and Hales.

The improvement in the Young wrestlers, which took place in the interval between the U. S. A. C. meets and the U. of U. matches, was phenomenal and indicated splendid coaching and training. The 21 to 13 win over the veteran Utah wrestlers was a conference surprise and the biggest surprise of the meet was Moody's decision over last year's conference champion in the 145 pound class, R. Detton. Haddock, Creer, Moody and Hales counted the five wins out of the eight matches with the "U." Smart and Yorgesen of the "Y" won snappy exhibition matches from Lewis and Roylance on the same night, February 8th.

By taking seven out of eight matches with the U. I. S. B. the B. Y. U. mat men decisively demonstrated their superiority in the bone crushing art.

The victories of Neff Smart, Milo Moody and Iman Hales in the divisional tourney at Salt Lake made them conference champions in the 115, 145 and 165-pound classes, respectively, and gave the B. Y. U. second place. Creer, Cropper and Goe were finalists. An injury suffered by Creer in the Idaho meet was undoubtedly the cause of his loss and thereby the loss of first place for the "Y" in the meet. The scores were: Utah, 28½; B. Y. U., 21; Montana, 19½, and U. S. A. C., 19.

Tennis

STARTING out this year minus three of last year's regular players on the state championship tennis team confronted Coach Buck Dixon with a real problem. However, the annual spring tennis tournament uncovered some splendid freshmen material, who, with the veterans from last year, formed a formidable squad. Paul Holt was the ace of the team, aided by Eldon Brinley and Wesley Porter, both letter men. The new men to make the squad were Kent Johnson and Rosy Snow, and two sensational freshmen who bid fair to make a name for themselves before their college days are over, Clayton Jenkins, Jr., and Walter Roberts.

Although they did not retain their state championship honors, Young was anything but a set-up, and every meet was close and hard fought, with the breaks deciding the issue in favor of their opponents. Holt, Brinley, Porter, Johnson, and Jenkins were the mainstays of the team in the college meets, although they were closely pressed throughout the season for their positions on the team by the other members of the squad, Snow and Roberts.

Other Minor Sports

ONE of the activities participated in here at school is boxing. It made its first appearance on the campus only a few years ago, but has steadily increased in favor until more and more of the he-men of the institution are entering its ranks. The ones who take part are the most ardent supporters of it, and by this manifest interest is the manly art of self-defense recommended to all. Some of the most outstanding fighters in the A. A. U. tournament conducted each year in Salt Lake City, have been products of B. Y. U. A great future for this activity seems scheduled for the Youngsters.

Swimming has always attracted a number of enthusiasts, but the unfortunate closing of Provo High School's swimming pool this year eliminated this activity from the program of sports at the "Y." The presence here of Professor C. S. Leaf was more than fortuitous, for under his coaching the "Y" has won many championships in the aquatic sport. One of the most notable achievements was the producing of a two-time national championship in the person of Bud Shields who is the present record-holder in the inter-collegiate hundred-yard and two twenty-yard free-style events. With no place left in Provo in which to continue training, Bud and his coach were forced to leave, and at present are at the U. S. A. C. in Logan.

It is to be hoped that the near future will see the re-opening of the pool and with it the return to this campus of erstwhile laurels.

Hylanders

ROALD CAMPBELL

THE activity of the Hylanders was distinguished by a wide variety which called into play the interests and talents of every member.

Social diversions ranging from dancing parties and programs to hikes and sleigh-rides were ably conducted by the Entertainment Committee, Alva Johanson, Laurel Leavitt and Clarence Wilson, assisted by the officers.

They participated successfully in the forensic, musical, literary, and athletic efforts of the university. Roald Campbell was one of the debating duo that won an unbroken string of four triumphs on a tour of the Northwest. In scholarship the unit ranked high, three members achieving the honor roll. One of the outstanding athletes was Iman Hales, who, though a freshman, captured a conference wrestling title and was made wrestling captain for 1930-31.

Mates

FOR three years the Mates have been one of the outstanding groups on the campus. With the aim of obtaining members qualified in all activities, these men have become an exceptional all-around unit. Each member is expected to be a true mate to his brother members, and everyone supports the highest standard of student activity and interest. It is felt that here is being accomplished the purpose for which the social unit system was first established. As the school year closes the curtain falls on another too short, but happy and successful voyage of the Mates.

FRED M. MOORE

THE Nuggets unit was formerly known as the Goldbrickers Club, and was organized in 1917. In 1923 all clubs were banished from the campus, but the club continued to function apart from the school until the installation of the social unit system. Upon the inauguration of the present system, the Goldbrickers were among the first to affiliate, and became known on the campus as social unit number one. The new plan demanded, however, a change in the name, so the traditional "Goldbrickers" was abandoned, and "Nuggets" was the choice for the successor. The old traditions of the group remain, so that this stands out as one of the most active on the campus. Many student body officers, athletes, debaters, and men known for other accomplishments are numbered in its membership.

Tausigs

A CLOSE blending of scholarship has been the goal of the Tausigs social unit. This group offers each year a silver loving cup to the most scholarly social unit in the university, with resulting wide-spread interest in the more serious phases of school life. Socially, the unit holds annually a formal dinner dance, a Salt Lake theatre party, a social held in conjunction with the Nuggets, and an invitation dance, in addition to its regular bi-monthly dinners, etc. The Tausigs have made an excellent showing in athletics this year, ranking high in intra-mural competition. One of the distinctions belonging to this unit is the fact that both the captains of the 1929 football squad, and the captain of the 1930 eleven are Tausigs.

WENDELL TAYLOR

THE outstanding aim of the Vikings this year has been to really encourage and further the democratic spirit which first gave rise to the social unit system. A spirit of good fellowship has bound the members together so that unity and success has followed every undertaking.

In the line of social gatherings the unit has been particularly active. The first annual formal dinner dance was held the eve of Thanksgiving, and a number of parties followed each holiday. The Viking unit numbers among its members many who are prominent in student government, athletics, and several other student activities.

Zeit Geist

IT has been the aim of the Zeit Geist social unit this year to not only meet in a social capacity, but to enlarge the acquaintance of each member with happenings in the fields of science. As the name Zeit Geist implies, these men have tried to keep up with the "Spirit of the Times." The regular bi-monthly meetings have for the most part been spent in discussion of topics of interest to the group. Lectures were given by those members directly interested in the subjects considered. Television, light, the fourth dimension, and aviation are subjects which have been investigated recently by the group. Some of the members have actually made experimentation in the field of radio television, and this has added interest to the undertakings of the unit.

Beaux Arts

ROZENA NELSON

WE are the Beaux Arts true, we have our social views,
 But still we're trying to keep the standards,
 Of this our B. Y. U. The school we're loyal to.
 Our aim is culture, friendship, refinement
 On to goals, on honor rolls,
 We find our names printed there.
 Then we'll progress, leading the rest
 All will be fair, we are Beaux Arts true,
 We'll keep our social views,
 Our aim is culture, friendship, refinement.

This song embodies the true spirit of the Beaux Arts. Successful parties, the girls' basketball championship, third place in the Pep Vodie, accomplished this year, mark the group as one of the most versatile on the campus.

Cesta Tie

A FRIENDLY group interest has been a feature of the spirit of this social unit. A splendid corps of officers has aided immeasurably in the carrying out of an intensely interesting program for the year. Outstanding social events were a Story-Book Ball, Four Season Formal, held in conjunction with the Mates, and the Spring Festival. The success of this year intensifies the hopefulness felt for next year's activities.

Deca Sema Fe

CONGENIALITY has been a distinctive characteristic of the Deca Sema Fe unit throughout 1930. Many happy parties, the pleasant memories of which will be cherished by its members, were enjoyed periodically during the school year. Paramount in social activities was the formal St. Patrick's Dinner Dance held in March at the Hotel Roberts. Members of the unit have been active in practically all phases of student life, there being representatives in debating, music, drama and home economics. An original and charming act in the Pep Vodie, which received considerable favorable comment, was one of the features of the year's work.

Del Marna

THE Del Marna is one of the newer and smaller units on the campus. It was organized to enrich the College experiences of its members through the sincere friendship of a group of girls from a variety of widely scattered places, but with congenial interests. A number of unique and highly successful parties have been held during the year and the girls are all looking forward to the resumption of friendships at the beginning of next year.

Nautilus

NAUTILUS symbolizes the development of friendship; each year as the spiral grows, it expands and becomes more beautiful.

LOVE of friends shines more brightly when it is linked with a lofty purpose. Our motto is "Ever Upward."

UNDER the Blue and Gold the Nautilus is each year receiving new friends into its iris dwelling, and they hear a voice which sings:

*"Build thee more stately mansions, O, my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low-vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea!"*

Minae Clarae

THE past year in the lives of the Minae Clarae has been one of great profit and enjoyment. Social activities, scholastic accomplishments, and achievements in the fields of art, music, drama, etc., have taken up most of the time. One of the aims of the unit has been to make each party unique, and with this in mind the entertainments have all been planned for the interest and benefit of those participating.

O. S. Trovata

ANNA HUGHES

A SPIRIT of cooperation and the stimulation of originality have characterized this group of girls in their activities of the year. Believing that a social unit should be a social organization, the Trovatas have been very active on the campus in this capacity. Some of the most attractive and outstanding social functions of the year have been sponsored by the unit, among them being the annual spring dinner dance held in the Hotel Roberts. A very clever Indian theme was worked out upon this occasion, and the party was entirely successful.

O. S. Trovata

IN what was rated by critics as the best Pep Vodie ever to be staged on the campus, and in competition with almost every other social unit in school, the O. S. Trovata won first place. Their act was a clever and entertaining one, showing that it was well-planned and rehearsed.

Valnorn

ELAINE PAXMAN

“VALNORN” became the official name of a group of “kindred spirited” girls in 1928. Since that time these girls have affianced many others of friendly attitude until today their social unit is one of renown on the “Y” campus and the name “Valnorn” is associated with girls of talent and accomplishments. Of the many interesting activities sponsored by this social unit the most symbolic social event was their annual dinner dance which was held at Hotel Roberts in January. The theme for this lovely “Festival” was “A Flight to Valhalla.” In the toasts, music and decorations the old Norse mythology was uniquely depicted. The theme of the name “Valnorn” is taken from Norse mythology—the ancient beliefs of the “Valnorn’s” ancestors.

Fidelas

THE aim of Fidelas is the cultivation of enduring school day friendships. Along with this go the sponsoring and enjoyment of happy social activities, and the endeavor to do the utmost in support of B. Y. U. ideals. Among the outstanding parties of the year are those given by Fidelas. One of the most enjoyable and beautiful of all was the traditional formal dancing party given at the Hotel Roberts in April.

Alpha Kappa Psi

AS one of the professional organizations on the campus, Beta Delta chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, national commerce fraternity, has played a prominent part in the activities of the school. One of the requirements for entrance into the fraternity is scholarship, so the members rank high in that achievement.

The "All Boys Show," is sponsored by this group and has always been enthusiastically received. The proceeds from this show go to the Alpha Kappa Psi Loan Fund which is made available to students in commerce. This in itself is a most worthy effort. The members of this group are all active in school life and are among the outstanding students in school.

Theta Alpha Phi

THE Utah Beta chapter of Theta Alpha Phi, national honorary dramatic fraternity, is one of the distinctive organizations on the campus at B. Y. U. Composed solely of men and women who have proved their ability in histrionic achievements, this body of Thespians represents the highest to be attained in dramatic circles. One of the cultural efforts undertaken by the group during the year just past was the review of seven Greek dramas by Aeschylus, Euripides, Sophocles, and Aristophanes. Every two weeks a luncheon was held at which interesting reports of plays and activities in the world of dramatic art were given. Kester's play, "Friend Hannah" was presented in April as the annual Theta Alpha Phi play, and its reception indicated an excellently performed vehicle.

Gamma Phi Omicron

ANGELYN WARNICK

GAMMA PHI OMICRON Sorority is a professional organization, established at the B. Y. U. in 1926. Its membership is selected from the upper third of the Junior and Senior girls majoring in Home Economics, on the basis of scholarship and practical application of subject matter. The club also functions socially. Among its most delightful affairs this year, were the reception given in November, the Fornial Dinner Dance at the Hotel Roberts in February, the Anniversary Banquet, in May and the Alumni Breakfast in June. Beside these, a clever novelty party and business meeting and a professional meeting, were held each month. The club has contributed four volumes of Research papers to the Home Economics Library of the school and has established a loan fund which is rapidly growing.

Friars

THIS is a club composed of men who have filled missions for the Latter-day Saints Church. The club is not confined to this campus but is directly connected with the chapter at the University of Utah also the one at the State College. Over all is an executive president under whose direction the local presidents function. The purpose is to foster fellowship and to stimulate social, recreational and religious activity.

The word "Friar" (meaning brother) is used to designate this organization because, historically, it has an intellectual as well as a religious significance, the Friars being practically the only men to carry any intellectual light over the chasm of the dark ages. Therefore, the name seems appropriate for such an organization on a college campus.

Mask Club

THE Mask Club is a local organization existing for the purpose of stimulating interest in and appreciation for the drama. In order to accomplish this end, the club has sponsored this year, a program widely appealing in variety and quality. Special features were the appearance here of Reed K. Andrews of the Church and Drama League, and the program given in College Hall by Roscoe Grover and the KSL entertainers. The year's activities were particularly filled with excellent play readings by the members of the class in play reading.

Idaho Club

THE animating spirit of the Idaho Club may be embodied as a person and christened "Friendliness." This friendliness to be explained by the fact that the members have analogous interests in: a particular vegetable—the spud; a certain area consisting of lava rock, sand, sage brush, and coyotes—Idaho; and a peculiar school, that is of sufficient attraction to make distance unimportant and homesickness a mere trifle—the Brigham Young University. The Idaho Club functions as a cooperation for the furthering of social good times, one traditional feature of which is the annual moonlight hike during the spring quarter.

Women Missionaries

MARVAL ATWOOD

WHEN the Friar's Club appeared on the campus to replace the old Y. D. D. Club, the women who had returned from missions found themselves outside the gate of the new organization. Not to be outdone, the members of the weaker sex organized the young Ladies' Missionary Club. This is the second year for the organization. One of the most outstanding social functions of the group is the annual formal breakfast held during commencement week and to which all women missionaries are invited. An extended effort has been made this year to make the organization known on the campus, especially those eligible for membership. The end of the school year closes a successful and happy season.

Block Y Club

IT is not difficult to identify and justify the existence of the Block "Y" Club on this campus. There is a camaraderie existing among all those who have won the right to wear the official block "Y" insignia awarded for representing the school in one or more of the many intercollegiate contests. This spirit of kinship is given concrete expression in the organization which takes in all wearers of the "Y."

Being a purely honorary institution, the club makes no attempt to function socially, although a spring dinner dance is one of the traditions. No one club on the campus is so rich in tradition as is this group, and none is better qualified to uphold the standards of Brigham Young.

Speech Class

THIRTY-EIGHT men and twenty-nine women make up the sections of Speech 2 and Speech 63. In the group are winners of various awards in oratory and debate. As a group and as individuals these students have manifested a wholesome influence in their work and have attained no slight degree of excellence in the art of speech. One is safe in predicting a social and intellectual uplift in the communities where they reside. Many of them will teach in high-schools and seminaries. Others will study in various universities.

The Editor's Finale

SITTING at the typewriter in a frenzied last minute rush, the Editor is wondering as to the reception his book will be given. His nerves are worn down by the pressure of the little time remaining, so he feels like saying to critics, "You can go to the appropriate place of adequate heat intensity provided and reserved for intolerants, bigots, and people of superlative ability who would have made the book so much better." But, of course, this would not be delicate so the Editor must express himself in terms of better refinement and culture.

Therefore, in the most approved humble and apologetic manner supposed to be assumed by all culprits, we beseech you to consider with leniency the results of our most unworthy efforts. For a year we have slept with the Banyan, it has haunted our dreams and dogged our daily footsteps for a year we have worked and planned, altered and built; for a twelve-month we have argued and pled, perspired and despaired; for weeks and weeks we have mounted photos, written articles, cursed staff members, printers, and engravers fervidly and sincerely; and now the thing is done.

But, stay—the Editor still must expiate some how the crime of the misspelled name, the wrongly placed photo, and the horrid appearance of the blonde girl whose features were distorted by an unkind photographer. We realize that no punishment, however severe, is enough, but serious reflection on the matter has suggested that he be sentenced to pay and pay by being forced to daily review his atrocities as they have been perpetrated and perpetuated in the 1930 Banyan.

But at any rate, here it is. Forsaking facetiousness, the Editor must express appreciation to his staff who have done so much for the book. Without detailing it all to you who cannot realize the effort it has taken, let us mention particularly the work of the art staff, Euray Anderson and Fermen Westergard; the loyalty of Angelyn Warnick who prepared the life section; the diligence of Grant Hastings who performed most of the menial tasks required in commendable fashion; and the painstaking work of Vilda Jessen whose efforts in organization and planning meant so much. In addition let us not forget Ethel Alder, whose nimble fingers typed so much correspondence and copy sheets; Clyde Sandgren, who labored as one of the associate editors; Rex Christensen, who earned his award in two days' work; Alice Brinton, who prepared the W. A. A. section; Lynn Broadbent, who gathered photos; Dixie Mangum, who handled high school pages; Bert Harrison, who skill with the camera acquired all the views, athletic pictures, and many of the social unit and club photos; Evelyn Ostlund, who supervised the work on the organization section; Rosy Snow, who did an excellent job of the sports write-ups; to say nothing of the highly efficient business staff whose work made the job a financial success, J. Grant Thurgood and Norman Bingham.

FEATURES

The Pageant Of The Ages

ONE of the most spectacular presentations of the year was given in the Salt Lake Tabernacle from April 6 to May 3. It was "The Pageant of the Ages," produced by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints as a part of the great celebration arranged in commemoration of the founding of the church a hundred years ago. During the period of its showing it was seen by thousands of people who came from nearly all parts of the world to see it. It was, of course, of interest primarily to Mormons, but so colorful was it that great numbers of people not of this faith were numbered among those who saw its performance.

That an adequate description of the Pageant could be condensed in the limited space provided here is an impossibility. Those who saw it will not need the few words inscribed here to bring it vividly to mind again, and those who were unable to see it could never realize the force of its appeal from a mere printed summary. In music, in poetry, and in dramatic color it beautifully presented Mormon doctrine, philosophy, and faith.

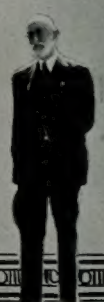

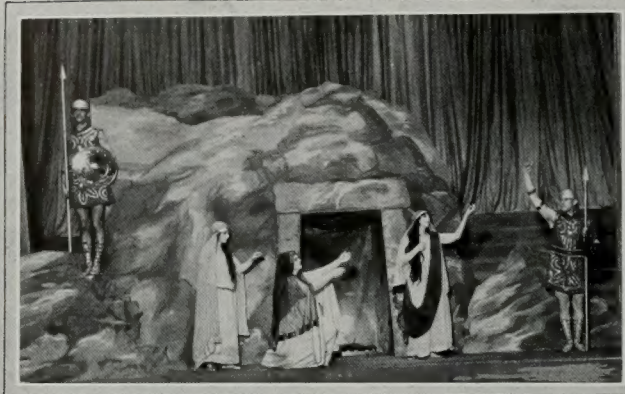

The success of the undertaking is due directly to the efforts of the committee in charge—men and women of ability, foresight, and vision. Of that committee some of the most important members are present and past members of Brigham Young University's faculty and student body. No one who attended the presentation of the Pageant could fail to be impressed with the artistry of its arrangement and color—its marvelous scenic effects beggar description. This most important phase of the work was in charge of one of B. Y. U.'s own faculty members, Professor Elbert H. Eastmond, of the Art Department.

Possessing an unusual amount of innate ability in addition to skill acquired through constant study and application, Professor Eastmond was the logical man to supervise the art work of the Pageant. He has had a great deal of experience in pageantry, and is a recognized authority on the art. His indefatigable efforts are well-known to all with whom he has worked in the past, and a deep appreciation for his interest and effort is felt by all who have been associated with him. Because of the high standards of his workmanship, his loyalty and devotion to a task once undertaken, and the willingness with which he assists projects requiring his aid, he has gained the admiration and respect of all.

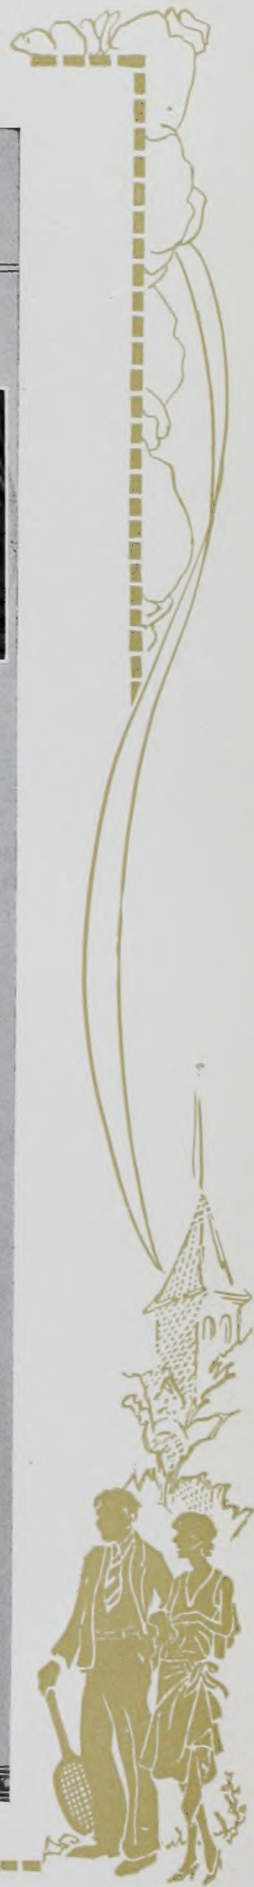

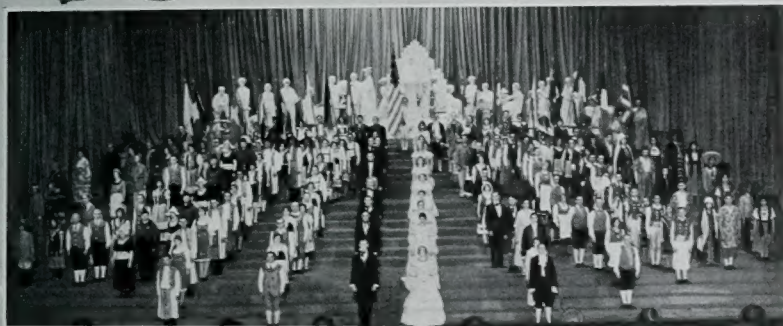

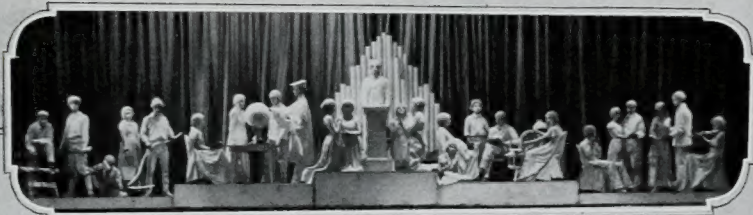

Another member of the faculty of this school who performed no slight service in the interests of the Pageant is Professor LeRoy Robertson of the Music Department who composed most of the special music for the occasion. Valuable assistance was also rendered by the Home Economics girls who helped with the costuming. Many other B. Y. U. students participated in the performance and in other ways assisted. Thus the Pageant became a feature in the lives of a great many connected with this school.

Pep Vodie

ONE of the features of student life is the annual Pep Vodie held prior to the basketball games played here with Utah. The Utes and Cougars have always been rivals to a mean degree, and the intensity of feeling has resulted in many spectacular battles. It has not been at all unusual for the Redskins to take the contests played in Salt Lake, while the Cougars have managed to take most of the conflicts staged in the home lair. In order to insure the latter result, the Pep Vodie is staged at the psychological moment to arouse student interest and enthusiasm to a pitch of fervid loyalty. A contest is staged between social units, the winner to be given a full page in the Banyan. Elsewhere in this book is pictured the victorious act.

Some most unusual talent is nearly always uncovered in the performance, and it is said that this year's Vodie surpassed all others in professional workmanship. Hilariously funny, dizzily conglomerate, weirdly kaleidoscopic, fantastic in the extreme, the Vodie as a whole was a tremendously impressive and enjoyable vehicle this year.

Summer School

SUMMER school at Brigham Young University has become as important as the other three quarters of the school year. Regular students of the school attend it, and many from all parts of the country are attracted to it because of its special Alpine session. The first few weeks of the school are spent on the campus, but the middle of the summer sees the students all packing up and going to the coolness of the Alpine camp. Here, near the summit of famous old Timpanogos, the last weeks are spent, and it is not difficult to imagine the enjoyment of those who participate in the activities in this place.

With the regular faculty of the school greatly augmented by professors of note from other schools throughout the United States, valuable instruction awaits all who are fortunate enough to be listed as students. Nowhere can be found a more desirable spot for a summer school session.

Y Women

The Womens' Athletic Association

THE Women's Athletic Association of Brigham Young University, though still in its infancy, is progressing each year and has achieved many of its aims. The motto of the association is "A girl for every sport and a sport for every girl." The girls are becoming more interested in getting out of doors and having a jolly good time as well as in playing inside games together.

The year 1929-30 began with the annual get-acquainted party at which every social unit was represented. Points, according to the percentage of the unit present, were given towards the cup which is to be presented to the social unit having the largest number of points at the end of the year. This cup is being donated by the Frank J. Mullet Jewelry Co. To keep the cup it must be won two years in succession.

Basketball was the next activity in line and a tournament that created great interest took place in March and ran for one week. At the close of the tournament the Beaux Art, winning team, challenged an all-star team of the school and defeated them. This team has yet to meet its equal.

April 24 saw the girls of the "Y" participating in the annual track meet. Those teams who met in basketball again met for supremacy of track and added more points toward the cup.

W. A. A. members and officers officiated entirely at the girls Annual invitational track meet on April 25 and 26th. They also assisted in entertaining over 200 girls who participated in the posture parade.

Representatives were sent to the convention of the three Utah schools held at Utah this year. It was held at the "Y" last year.

Each year four girls receive honor sweaters for their activities in various sports. These are given to the four outstanding girls having 1500 or more points. This year those to receive sweaters are Lilly Skousen, foremost girl basketball star, and sophomore; Beryl Hibbert, senior; LaPreal Bryner, junior; and Lucille Thorne, junior.

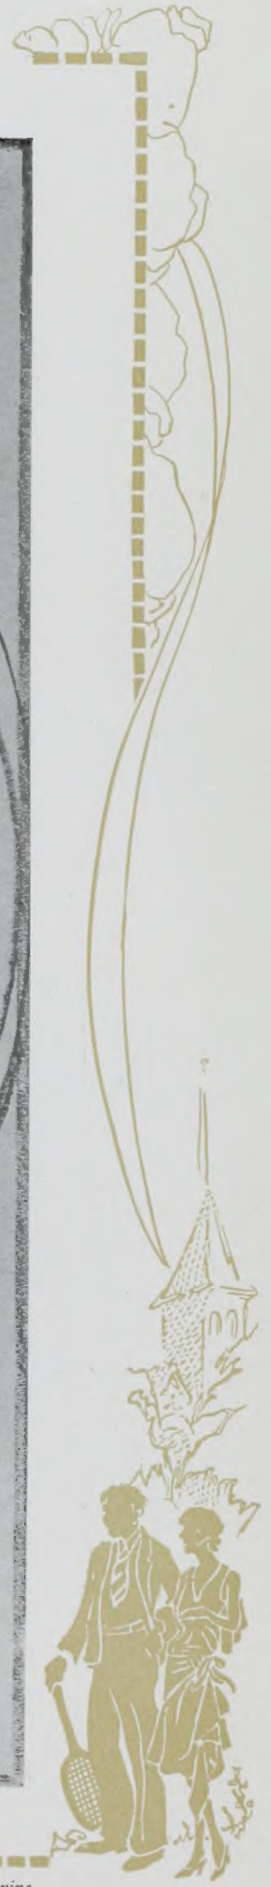

Bessie Meiling has been a most capable sponsor and because of her past experience and work in the W. A. A. she has given many valuable suggestions and good advice and has added to the strength and popularity of the organization.

Dedication

A REVERED and beloved tradition of past editors, which we here propose to do our share in perpetuating, is the dedication of the Bunyon. In order that we avoid making enemies it is imperative that the one on whom this honor is bestowed be carefully chosen. After reviewing recent issues of the Bunyon, which we find to be dedicated to such as skunks, mountains and donkeys, and after many hours of serious reflection and sober deliberation and many nights of tossing sleeplessly in bed debating the question, we have made a choice and believe that it is in harmony with the past custom of dedicating the Bunyon to something insignificant which has not the intelligence to know that it is being attacked or, having that amount of "grey-matter," has not the power of retaliating. We have chosen for this honor an organization which, if, by a very improbable chance, it has sufficient consciousness to sense the derision in this act, will have very little opportunity for avenging its injured honor. Not only is this dedication appropriate for these reasons but also because the recipient of this distinction is already an ancient enemy of Banyans and BUNYONS. Since ours is an annual publication which does not have the opportunity of replying publicly to attacks upon it, as they are frequently made throughout the year in the publication of the organization to which this is to be dedicated, we very appropriately and with an intense and time honored hatred, augmented by a year's accumulation of insults, dedicate this 1930 BUNYON TO THE "Y" NEWS AND ITS STAFF.

The two students met between classes.
"How do you get along with old Professor Brown?" asked one.

"Great," replied the other. "We do nothing but talk about old times."

The first looked rather hard at his friend.

"That's curious," he remarked. "What subject have you got him for?"

"Roman history," was the reply.

"No girl ever made a fool out of me."

"Who was it then?"

ABSENT-MINDED

"Well, well, a professors' meeting?"

"Yes, a little forget-together."

The freshman across the hall says he likes his new topcoat very much, only he can't get used to the wood across the shoulders and the hook keeps pushing his hat off.

He: I won't graduate from college this year.

She: Why not?

He: I didn't go.

An Essay

AS the school year nears its close, it very often happens that seniors, who are attending school for their last year, become sentimental and, while under the over-powering influence of tender emotions—or the full moon—or liquor—pen lines of poetry or flowery essays to their dear Alma Mater. Although I am a senior and probably shall not again attend school, for some time, at least, I have as yet failed to experience feelings which would cause me to become poetical or philosophical and, although I am not a writer of “Y” news opinion columns, I propose to attack, in a narrow-minded and small manner, the sincerity of these writers and to make a few statements which will clearly prove that their sentiments are unwarranted, silly and probably the result of some other motive or some other emotion which they have mistaken for a love of school.

In the first place, why should one profess an uncontrollable affection for an institution to which one—as well as ninety-nine out of every one hundred other students—is forced, by circumstances or parents rather than by desire and choice, to attend? Very likely had one attended some other university, where ones peculiar talents and abilities would be quickly recognized and his subtle but charming personality would be readily appreciated and admired, one would have been much more successful scholastically and more active in extra-curricular activities, would have realized greater accomplishments, and would have enjoyed wider popularity.

Why should one be overwhelmed by a feeling of gratitude toward a pecuniary organization, which for four years or more has unmercifully drained his own financial resources as well as those of his least unsuspecting relatives and friends? What a pigeon-livered conscience one must have to feel that he owes anything—even gratitude—to his school where he pays far too liberally for everything he gets! The cash payments which students are obliged to make have been quite fully discussed elsewhere during this and other years: I need only mention such items as tuition, student body fees—which entitles one to attend games for which one also pays exorbitant figures merely for standing room—graduation fees, year book prices, the senior project, etc., etc. Again I ask you, how can one still feel indebted?

I suspect there are even a few nit-wits who would thank their dear Alma Mater for what ever honor and distinction they have gained in school. But I firmly maintain that, that, too, is very well earned. If one gains recognition in extra curricular activities it is through untiring personal efforts, sleepless nights and patient scheming. If one's distinction is a position on the honor-roll it is the result of ceaseless grinding and careful attention to the whims and caprices of professors for it is generally understood that professors are universally the unsympathetic enemies of students, that they are constantly attempting to find weaknesses in the student's defenses and alibis and that with the very slightest opportunity or suspicion, they will withhold a high grade. Rather than being helpful and interested in the advancement of their students they are trying to keep them down to limit the number who get through—does not the freshman class of one year become a much smaller sophomore class the next year, and does not this decrease continue throughout the entire four years of the course? Professors are many students' barriers to wealth honor, respectability, glory and success.

I have heard students laud the inestimable valuable friendships formed in college and I have wondered how they can conscientiously be so hypocritical when in our so-called democratic school. The only acquaintances one makes are social units. For, fear of lowering their dignity seems to prevent mere classroom associates from becoming friendly. Between social units, there is a coldness and an enmity which approaches medieval class distinction in nature. Within social units, there is a semblance of friendship, but it is not genuine. Alumni members of units are forgotten when they receive the sheepskin. Why, haughtiness, aloofness, and snobbishness are getting so rampant that a girl can not even get a husband in college! If one does the poor unlucky boy usually awakes to find that he has been a sucker!

Finally, what have you gained professionally or vocationally when college is finished? You have received an impractical, theoretical training and a diploma. There is no demand for you in the big cold world. You must beg for a job, and in many cases if you haven't a strong pull you have to go back to the farm, the mine, the pick and the shovel—in debt: if to your school, it is not a debt of gratitude, but a financial burden like the rest of your obligations.

Every nerve was taut. His every sense was strained to the highest pitch. Slowly, very slowly, he turned the knobs, anxiously noting the effect of every deviation. He mustn't turn it too fast, or surely he would lose it. A fine adjustment now would just get it and then—success!

He twisted the knob to the right very slowly. Eureka . . . he had it! The hot and cold water for his bath was adjusted exactly right.

"Why don't you put on your slicker?"

"I can't. I got a book in one hand and it won't go through the sleeve."

He shuffles into class almost nine minutes late every day, and creates an unnecessary noise by slamming the door after him. He disturbs a large part of the class by calling them by name, and sometimes he has even been known to talk aloud in the very midst of class—

PREPAREDNESS

Even his most Sanguine friends for years regarded Abraham Lincoln as more or less a failure, but all the time he was preparing for the great opportunity.

Few big business concerns made good in meteoric fashion. They grew slowly on a solid foundation of preparedness. Their success was earned.

We congratulate the Nineteen-thirty Senior Class for the preparedness thus far accomplished in college and training life. Opportunity comes to those who are prepared.

Ours too is a training school in life. For fifty-eight years we have been striving to build a bigger and better institution, and have succeeded in helping thousands of people to own their homes. This same dependable service is available to you and yours. We are a state wide institution.

Awaiting the Class of '30

Seen through the time-veiling perspective of college life it seems impossible that four years have passed since the class of '30 matriculated. But in the turbulent world outside enough progress has developed to fill a century.

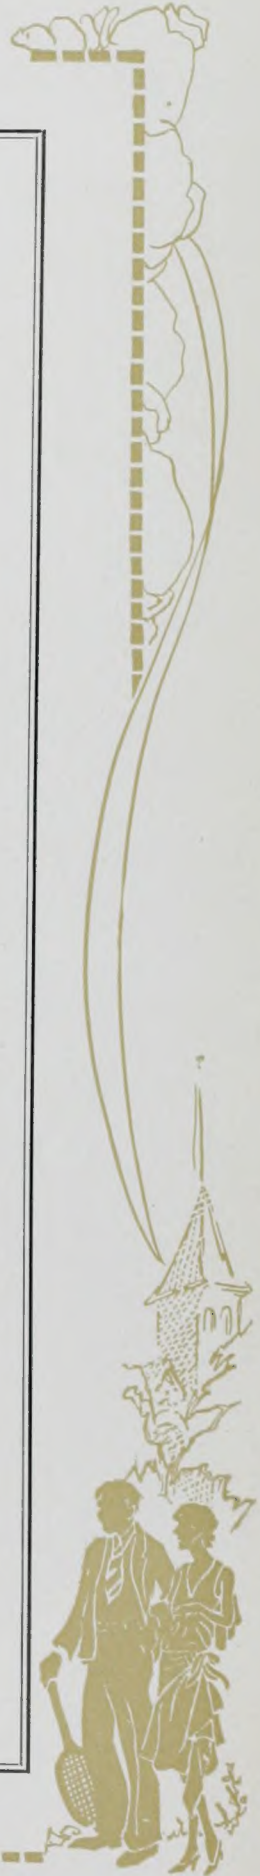

Notable have been the changes in home building. From stark utility, plumbing and heating fixtures have been transformed into objects of beauty with new designs, new refinements, and iridescent colors.

When the time comes for them to plan their homes, members of the class of '30 are cordially invited to the Crane Exhibit Rooms where these new fixtures and fittings for bathrooms, kitchens, and laundries are displayed.
